ATTEMPTS TO DRAG PILOT FROM PLANE WHEN TRIP REFUSED

Victoria Man Creates Disturbance at Esquimalt Float When Airplane Ready to Leave—Refused Passage on Vancouver-Bound Machine—Inspector of Aviation Summons Police Aid

REFUSED passage on a Canadian Airways airplane because of objectionable conduct before the plane took off from Esquimalt at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon bound for Vancouver, a Victoria man attempted to pull pilot Billy Wells from his machine as it was leaving the landing float, thereby endangering five other passengers aboard the craft.

A warrant is being issued for his arrest, it was admitted last night by R. Carter Guest, inspector of civil aviation. Mr. Guest declined to state on what charge the man would be brought to trial. "That is a matter for the Esquimalt police, who will have charge of the case," Mr. Guest stated.

BECOME ABUSIVE

According to a witness the man had been drinking and the pilot refused to take him aboard the plane. The man became abusive, and when the plane was about to leave the float he and his friends attempted to pull Pilot Wells from the nose of the machine. Mr. Guest, who was on the float at the time summoned the Esquimalt police.

While Mr. Guest was hesitant to discuss the incident before trial of the offender he made it clear that, in view of a recent happening in the East every care would be taken to safeguard passengers on planes in Canada, and pilots would exercise their porogative in refusing passage to persons who, in the opinion of the pilot, should not be carried.

SEEKS DAMAGES FROM TEACHERS

Four Seattle Professors Are Blamed for Break-Up of Woman's Marriage

SEATTLE, Sept. 23 (AP).—Blaming four professors for the break-up of her marriage, Mrs. Bertha Freyd Lane, divorced wife of Dr. John Leon Lane, asked a jury today to award her $250,000 judgment against the instructors as her alienation of affections suit went to trial.

Defendants are Dr. Frederick Morgan Padelford, Dr. David Connolly Hall and Dean David Thomson of the University of Washington staff and Dr. William Henry George, former university professor.

BASIS OF SUIT

She accused the educators of falsely stating to Dr. Lane during the Winter of 1930, that she was not rational, was hysterical, did not appreciate him, was saying uncomplimentary things about him, was not fit to be his wife and was wrongfully defending her brother, who they allegedly said was not conducting himself properly at the university.

As a result of these purported statements, she said Dr. Lane divorced her.

BROTHER LOST SUIT

Her brother, Theodore Freyd, recently lost a malicious prosecution suit against the same instructors, based on his incarceration for a short time after a scuffle with Dr. Padelford.

The defence, Attorneys Gerald Degarmo and William E. Froude said, will contend that the professors did nothing to interfere with the couple.

BOY KILLED IN CYCLE ACCIDENT

Two on Machine Crash Into Surrey School Bus—Other Youth Is Badly Injured

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 23 (C.)—Jack Brown, fourteen, was killed almost instantly, and Angus Campbell, fourteen, suffered severe injuries today when a bicycle upon which the two boys were alleged to have been riding collided with a Surrey municipality school bus. Both boys resided near Port Kells, B.C.

Police believed whoever was steering the bicycle lost control temporarily. Both boys were rushed to the Royal Columbian Hospital here, but Brown was dead on arrival. Campbell was suffering from severe scalp wounds, a broken collarbone, broken right hand and other injuries.

LONDON HORSES STRICKEN

LONDON, Sept. 23 (C.)—London's horse population is in the grip of an influenze epidemic. Officials of the Royal Veterinary College estimate that nearly a fifth of all the horses in the city are affected.

COAL MINERS REMAIN OUT

Hope Held for Early Settlement of Labor Dispute in United States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—Continuation of the soft coal strike at least one more day came tonight when the committee of Appalachian producers and United Mine Workers seeking a new wage and hour agreement recessed until tomorrow without reaching an accord.

Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor and President Roosevelt's representative in the negotiations, said, however, he still was hopeful of an early agreement.

"In fact," he told reporters jokingly, "we hope to get a settlement in time to get to the prize fight in New York tomorrow night.

"As long as they agree to sit down at a table and talk to each other there's hope."

START OF STRIKE

The strike started at midnight last night after the miners and operators had failed to agree on a new contract to suceed the five times extended pact that expired at that hour.

The miners asked higher pay.

Tonight, the two sides had agreed on all terms but the new wage for tonnage men—miners paid for the coal they dig and load.

Through McGrady, the operators had proposed an increase of seven and one-half cents over the old rate, the Labor Department official told reporters. The union demanded a nine-cent increase.

RELATIONS BETTER

The atmosphere at today's conferences McGrady described as "very friendly," contrary to last night's session, when bitter words were hurled across the conference table.

There was no immediate prospect of a coal shortage. A Government report, September 7, indicated there was a fifty-three-day supply—about 43,000,000 tons—above ground.

The strike did not affect the mining of anthracite, or hard coal.

BASEBALL FAN TO VERY LAST

De Wolf Hopper, Famous Actor, Died While Reading Sport Pages

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 23 (AP).—De Wolf Hopper died today—talking baseball, to the end.

The big seventy-seven-year-old comedian, whose resonant voice boomed more than 10,000 times that dramatic line, "The mighty Casey had struck out," died of heart disease at a hospital after dismissing his doctor that he might read the sport pages.

"Run along while I see what the Cards did," the six-times-married radio and stage star told an attending physician late last night. They were among the last words spoken by the man who made famous the recitation of "Casey at the Bat."

At Oakland, his sixth wife, Mrs. Lilian Glaser Hopper, a singer, disclosed that the actor's death had cut short plans for a motion-picture career. She will fly here and accompany the body to New York, where it will be cremated.

"His heart was gone," said Dr. H. P. Boughan, of Hopper.

"His was a sick body with a mind and spirit that would not admit it."

Two Earthquakes Felt in Alaska

Prime Minister Accuses Liberal Leader of Playing Into Hands of Japanese

Says Tariff Negotiations Impossible as Result of Mr. King's Speech

OVERCOMES HECKLING BY ROWDY ELEMENT

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (C.)—Prime Minister Bennett declared before a mass meeting here tonight that so long as his Government stood, neither Japan nor any other country would dictate the tariff policies of Canada. He charged Liberal Leader Mackenzie King with having taken sides with Japan in the dispute.

The Liberals had "plunged these negotiations with Japan into the arena of active politics," Mr. Bennett declared, "and as soon as Japan found the Liberal party was supporting that country, we could negotiate no longer."

NOISY SECTION

When Mr. Bennett started his address his voice was all but drowned out by a great clamor from the higher galleries. He called upon "decent honest citizens" to see that order was maintained, and charged the noisy sections with cowardice.

"These are the people who talk about free speech," he exclaimed, "and no wonder Section 98 remains on the statute book."

The noise finally subsided and

Millions of Fish Dying Victims of Strange Marine Condition

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Sept. 23 (AP). — A strange marine condition which some time ago killed millions of fish in the Gulf of Mexico in the vicinity of Corpus Christi, today had left more millions dead along a fifty-mile strip of coast. The dead were reported extending twenty miles south of here along the coast of Northern Mexico and thirty miles north of Padre Island on the Texas coast.

As in the previous disaster, the first intimation was the strong odor of sulphur dioxide, which made persons cough and hurt their eyes. Brownsville residents who camped on Padre Island Saturday night reported that the water there was yellowish in places, and they could see heavy gas rising from the water. They said the gas made them cough almost continually.

Youth Finds Fortune In Negotiable Bonds On New York Street

Poorly Paid Messenger Returns Securities Worth $150,000 to Owners in Wall Street—Were Lost By Man and Guard on Way to Office

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—A twenty-two-year-old messenger who makes $3.15 a week running errands for a coffee shop today found and returned a lost packet of $150,000 worth of negotiable bonds. The securities, ten $15,000 Federal farm mortgage issues, were described as "almost as negotiable as cash."

They had been lost on a street in the financial section by a messenger for C. F. Childs & Company, No. 1 Wall Street.

As noonday throngs scuffed the insignificant looking packet under foot and into the gutter, Albert Correrl, twenty-two, passed by on an errand for the coffee shop.

He picked up the envelope bound with a rubber band and looked inside. He kept right on, completed the errand on which he had been sent, and then took the bonds back to his employer, Allen Doyle, who notified Childs & Company.

LOST BY MESSENGER

The bonds had been lost by John O'Brien, fifty, a messenger, and William Rice, sixty, a guard, who carried them from the Childs' office to deliver them at the New York Trust & Mortgage Company, a block and a half away.

They did not discover their loss until they reached their destination.

Attempt to Send Mail by Rocket Fails

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (C.)—What was to have been the first "rocket postoffice" fizzled with a bank today, dashing to earth the mail and hopes of a group of philatelists and members of the International Cosmo Science Club.

The letters were loaded into the seven-foot rocket invented and the fuse was let. The rocket blew up on the ground. What was left of the mail was taken to the postoffice and mailed in the conventional way, by grave robbers.

H. F. Bibby was thumbed by a young man, stopped and opened the door to hear the well-dressed youth ask: "Have you a radio in your car?"

"No," said Bibby.

"Thanks very much," the hitch-hiker replied, "I'll wait for another car."

MUSSOLINI NOW SAYS HIS PROPOSALS NOT OFFICIAL

In Rejecting Geneva Peace Plan for Ethiopia, Italy Made "Observations" That Il Duce Now Says Were Not Authorized—Latest Action Only Creates Greater Confusion

Great Britain and France Again Confer on Situation

GENEVA, Sept. 23 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, through his spokesman, Baron Pompeo Aloisi, removed late tonight the stamp of Italy's official approval from the counter-proposals made by Aloisi to the League of Nations peace plan for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute. Aloisi had previously informed Salvador de Madariaga, chairman of the five-power committee which drew up the peace plan, of Il Duce's non-acceptance of the plan and had suggested minimum demands as a basis on which further discussions might be held.

It was this angle to the counter-proposals, denounced by some diplomats here as "impossible," that had led to much pessimism in League lobbies today concerning any hope for a peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian problem.

WITHHOLD PUBLICATION

Aloisi, late tonight, formally notified Madariaga that the "observations" which constituted rejection of the League peace plan should not necessarily be considered as official, and as a result the League of Nations decided not to publish Aloisi's criticism and counter-suggestions.

The actions of the Italian diplomat created anew conflicting hopes and fears as report of the statement circulated.

One deduction of the delegates was that Aloisi's denial of any official sanction to his virtual rejection of the essentials of the peace plan meant that Mussolini wishes to keep "his liberty of action" and to have no official relations with the League. Another opinion was that Mussolini wishes to keep open the door of conciliation. The announcement did much to dispel immediately rumors of an imminent Italian break with the League of Nations.

REPORTED DEMANDS

Aloisi's counter proposals were reported to include demands for a belt of Ethiopian territory connecting Italy's African colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland west of

Motorist Receives Mercy of Court by This Explanation

MONTREAL, Sept. 23 (C.)—As extenuating circumstances, a motorist who pleaded guilty before Recorder Leonce Plante today to parking opposite a fire station, testified that he was intoxicated at the time and decided to stop and get out of his car as he was in no condition to drive. Recorder Plante told the accused he at least had the courage to tell the truth. The motorist was let off with suspended sentence.

WOULD AVERT DOCK STRIFE

Tension High as Committees Seek to End Waterfront Disputes

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23 (AP).—Labor relations' committees, seeking to avert a recurrence of last year's bitter Pacific Coast maritime strife, met here today while tension increased in the dispute over so-called "hot" cargo.

In response to a demand from employers that the cargo issue be submitted to M. C. Sloss, impartial referee, Harry Bridges, militant president of the San Francisco Local of the International Longshoremen's Association, asked time to confer with other union heads.

TWO SHIPS RELEASED

Another Labor relations' committee, representing ship owners and union seamen, agreed on lifting an "unfair" blockade against the steamer Manukai, tied up here since August 7, and the steamer Point Ancha, tied up at Seattle since September 17. Unions affiliated with the International Seamen's Union at the two ports were directed to furnish crews for the vessels.

The "hot" cargo issue, through which the waterfront employers declared they were determined to force a "show down" and intimated they were prepared to hire non-union longshoremen, remained the principal immediate menace to continued maritime peace.

Members of the International Longshoremen's Association, who refuse to handle the cargo, the employers reiterated, will not be given further employment. Bridges and other union leaders accepted this as meaning a "black list" had been started.

Colony Offered Self-Government

ST. PIERRE ET MIQUELON, Sept. 23 (C.)—After almost three centuries of rule from across the sea, self-government has been offered this tiny colony, last remnant of France's great Colonial Empire in North America.

Government by elected representatives rather than a Governor appointed by France is proposed by the home administration. Acceptance or rejection of the plan is up to the island's 5,000 people themselves.

ENDS FLIGHT IN IRISH PASTURE

Felix Waitkus Escapes Injury When Plane Crashes After Atlantic Crossing

BALLINROBE, County Mayo, Irish Free State, Sept. 23 (AP). — Felix Waitkus, the Wisconsin airman whose solo trans-Atlantic flight ended in a forced landing in an Irish pasture, said tonight he hoped to complete his aerial journey to Lithuania in a new plane.

His own ship was damaged beyond repair when he crashed.

Fogbound and buffeted by storms along the Irish coast, Waitkus, who had hoped to fly non-stop from New York to Kaunas, Lithuania, brought his white and orange plane down in a hazardous landing.

ESCAPES UNINJURED

Bouncing across the uneven field, the machine struck a tree. But Waitkus climbed out of the wreckage without a scratch.

"I had been flying blind for a long time," he asserted. "I had bad visibility all over the Atlantic and when I reached the coast I ran into storms and fog."

Despite the bad weather, Waitkus made good time for the trans-Atlantic crossing. He had been in the air less than twenty-two hours when coast guardsmen at Headford County Galway, saw his plane.

Freshman Arrives Bringing Own Bed

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 23 (C.)—A Niagara University freshman arrived bringing his own bed. There's a reason. He is six feet nine inches tall.

Flight Ends In Jump by Parachutes

KHARTUM, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Sept. 23 (AP).—The attempted London-to-Capetown flight of T. Campbell-Black and his co-pilot, J. H. G. McArthur, ended suddenly yesterday when the airmen "bailed out" with parachutes and landed safely on the west bank of the Nile. Their plane crashed west of the Kabushia Railway Station, 130 miles west of Khartum.

Reaching Kabushia on camels, the flyers started by train this afternoon for Atabara. They reported their plane had been burned.

FAILS TO GET QUINTUPLETS

Mary Pickford Meets Opposition to Plans for Movie Contract

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—Mary Pickford, here on a business trip, today admitted she had made little progress in her plans to arrange for the appearance of the Dionne quintuplets in movies.

"I doubt very much if the Ontario Government, particularly Minister Croll (Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare), will approve any such contract," Miss Pickford said. "I did come here in hopes of signing them up. Beyond that, I can't say anything."

She has given up all thought of further appearance on the screen herself. "When things become a bit more settled, I plan to adopt some children."

Cows Inebriated By Stunted Corn

DALHART, Texas, Sept. 23 (C.)—Eight cows which went on a whale of a spree had such "hangovers" today that treatment was required. Called to attend the wobbling bovines, Dr. R. M. Olbeter, veterinarian, found they had fed in a stunted corn field. He said the peculiar growth and weather conditions had loaded the ears with alcoholic elements.

DANISH SEAMEN IN CLOSE CALL

Twenty Men Found Lashed To Rigging of Battered Fishing Schooner

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 23 (AP).—Twenty Danish seamen found lashed to the rigging of their crippled fishing vessel were recovering strength slowly in Valleyfield, Nfld., tonight, after a storm that almost sent them to the bottom.

Newfoundlanders found them aboard the schooner Coroner as the fifty-four-ton craft wallowed helplessly in the storm-swept sea off Valleyfield, her deck a mass of wreckage, her foremast and bowsprit carried away and her wheelhouse washed overboard with the navigating instruments.

Captain Jensen said they had run into a storm early in the month while coming to Newfoundland from the fishing banks off Greenland.

Reconstruction and Social Credit Units Fuse Candidate Here

Trustee P. E. George, of Stevens Group, Takes Social Credit and National Dividend Pledge Publicly—Dividends of $50 Monthly Discussed

NATIONAL dividends for Canada became part of the Stevens Reconstruction Party's platform in Victoria last evening, when Trustee Percy E. George publicly took the Douglas Social Credit pledge before an audience of 500 persons at the City Temple. Preceding Mr. George, social credit speakers had asserted a monthly national dividend of $50 per family would be possible in Canada, and its introduction should be demanded as a policy of the people. Talk of a national dividend was received with cheers.

The pledge signed by Mr. George read, in part, as follows:

POLICY PLEDGED

"The only solution is a national dividend payable to every man, woman and child in the Dominion, whether they are privileged to take part in productive activity or not. Now, with our experts, who know exactly how this can be made available without increasing taxation, without inflation, and without taking anybody's property away from them, I believe it is my duty as a candidate in the forthcoming election, to advocate the above policy which I now endorse, and will pledge myself to advocate that this policy shall be given precedence over all other legislation and placed on the statutes of Canada without delay."

Mr. George was asked immedi-

Choice Is Between Drift, Violence or Rational Progress

Prime Minister Says Day Over When Free Trade or Lower Tariffs Is Issue—Discusses Activities of Liberal Party

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (?).—A choice between "drift, violence or rational progress" would have to be taken by Canadian electors in the forthcoming general election, Prime Minister Bennett declared in an address broadcast tonight over a national network. The day was past when free trade or lower tariffs was the issue. Conservative workers were called upon to fight against "forces of reaction and inaction on one side of you, and the forces of revolution on the other."

Mr. Bennett devoted a large portion of his half-hour address to discussion of Liberal Leader Mackenzie King's campaign activities. He observed that May wheat at Fort William had reached $1 and said that at the world conference in 1933 that goal had been fixed as the beginning of the end of depression.

In Brandon Mr. King had "applauded the Government's wheat policy." Mr. Bennett observed the Liberal leader need not have singled out the wheat policy, "because the Liberal party, with very few exceptions, voted for the entire programme which the Government brought down at the last session of Parliament. They opposed and ridiculed it, but did not dare vote against it."

Referring to Mr. King's parliamentary speeches on monetary reform, in which he was quoted as saying no party would undertake the task of nationalizing the financial system, and to his reported promises in Saskatoon on Saturday to aid the Social Credit Government, Mr. Bennett asked: "How can a plain man of affairs, such as I, compete with Mr. King?" Mr. King had asked for a majority so that he could "fight money power in the next Parliament." Mr. King had been in office nine years, "when finance ran riot, when Mr. Gundy, now chief adviser to Mr. Hepburn, was the controlling influence at Ottawa, and the story of Beauharnois is the story of how Mr. King fought high finance at that time."

"Since I last talked to you," Mr. Bennett said, "I have traveled across Canada and addressed meetings—the largest, most attentive and most enthusiastic I have seen. The tribute I have received, in recognition of the office which I hold as head of the Government which in difficult years has done so much for our country, makes me grateful that I was able in these years to serve my country which has done so much for you and for me."

IN INTERESTS OF CANADA

His Government had made mistakes, Mr. Bennett said. "Let us admit it freely. We have not been perfect. We have suffered as a party. We had at every turn of the road to put country before party claims. But what we did we did in the interests of Canada.

"Now we are in the midst of a progressive programme with clearly defined objectives. Make no mistake about the issue. Is this country to have a Government that will fight for its markets, fight for agriculture, fight for fair prices, fight for labor, fight for fair wages, for a high standard of living, and for security; or are we to have a Government which by its own record in the past, and which by its own professions, believes that the business of government is to stand on the sidelines and fight for no one?

"Close up your ranks, my party friends. You are called upon in this fight to face the forces of inaction and reaction on one side of you, and the forces of revolution on the other.

"A policy of drift; a policy of violence, or a policy of rational progress. These are the courses, one of which Canada must choose."

THE WHEAT PROBLEM

Wheat was a matter of profound significance to every part of Canada. The price of May wheat at Fort William had reached $1. Mr. Bennett recalled a delegate at the World Conference in London, declaring that if dollar wheat could be restored it would represent the final stage in the battle against depression. "We have had a long struggle to maintain wheat prices, and our loss in the last few months was due to a concerted effort to break the policy of your Government and force upon Canada a fire sale of its surplus wheat, assisted by some Canadian big interests represented by the Sifton press.

Dealing with Liberal opinions of Government policies, Mr. Bennett declared that while Liberal Leader Mackenzie King was declaring the minimum wheat price was proposed by his party, Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan was declaring in Nova Scotia that the fixed price was an election move. While Mr. King was at Halifax "with his olive branch for industry and protection," Ontario's Premier Hepburn was "at Moose Jaw dismantling the whole Canadian tariff structure with its exchange and anti-dumping duties. Has anyone ever seen such a spectacle?"

MONETARY MATTERS

Declaring that Mr. King had failed to declare himself on monetary and currency matters, Mr. Bennett said the Liberal leader's stand had been made clear in the House of Commons on April 26, 1932, when he spoke on a resolution of C.C.F. Leader J. S. Woodsworth, on nationalization of the financial system.

Then Mr. King had asked the question: "To whom would you entrust nationalization of our financial system?"

Mr. King's answer to his own question was that he did not believe "any group of persons who have given thought to these matters would attempt a task of this kind in Canada at this time." Mr. Bennett then quoted from Mr. King's speech at Saskatoon last Saturday when the Liberal leader was reported as promising aid to the Social Credit Government, and "pleads for majority to fight money power in next Parliament." Mr. King had been in office nine years "and the story of Beauharnois is the story of how Mr. King fought high finance at that time."

WANTS LIBERAL STAND

Mr. Bennet asked the questions: "Where does Mr. King stand with his Western lieutenants who favor the issuing immediately of more than $400,000,000 of paper money with no resources behind them? Where does he stand with respect to tariffs, with respect to bargaining, with respect to the Ottawa Agreements?"

Declaring that although Mr. King, in his campaign speeches, had abandoned opposition to the Government's tariff policies, he had already given notice to the Empire that he would reduce tariffs 50 per cent and "freely offer your industries on the altar of Manchester Liberalism." Mr. King would not be in a position to negotiate new agreements in 1937, because "he has already sold the pass."

While Mr. King had "made and written speeches about social questions," the reform programme of the Conservative party was on the statute books. "He pretends to decry the methods of big business and still hopes he will excite your prejudices by holding me up as their willing servant.

"Perhaps he has taken the advice that Mr. Hepburn is reported to have given his party workers in Toronto, that the politician has to play up to the man on the street occasionally, such as taking a crack at the bankers, and that although our financial institutions were doing the best they could, you had to give them a ride once in a while—men of the Aberhart and Stevens type would steal your votes."

WOULD REACT SEVERELY

Mr. King's tariff promises to the British Government, if fulfilled, would put 60 per cent of Canada's factory workers out of employment, Mr. Bennett charged, "and he will do nothing substantial to find other work for them."

Suggesting that Mr. King recant his Woodstock references to the Government's trade dispute with Japan, the Prime Minister quoted figures to show that a female cotton spinner in that country received less than 20 cents a day, a male spinner about 45 cents, a blacksmith 65 to 75 cents, leather workers about 60 cents, and domestic servants up to $3.50 per month.

"They receive wages compared to which our unemployment camps, where men receive food, clothing, shelter and 20 cents a day, are generous in comparison. It is against that competition we are protecting Canadian workers. Does anyone within sound of my voice want to submit the workers of this country to competition of that kind?"

CITY PIONEER PASSES AWAY

F. W. Vincent, Former Victoria Alderman, Succumbs —Funeral Tomorrow

Early yesterday morning there passed away at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Francis William Vincent, at the advanced age of eighty-four years. An early resident of the city, Mr. Vincent was well-known to a generation of pioneers of Victoria whose ranks are now becoming thin.

Mr. Vincent took a very deep interest in all matters of a public character and within a very few hours of his death had manifested a desire to be informed as to the progress of world affairs at this time so critical.

Naturally of a retiring disposition, Mr. Vincent was reluctant to offer himself for public office. He did, however, consent to become an alderman some years ago and in that capacity his sound judgment was held in high regard. He served five years on the council. He was also a member of the old Board of Trade, in which he showed his interest in advancing the position of the city.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Mr. Vincent was born in Newcastle-On-Tyne in England in 1851. He was the son of Capt. Robert Vincent, R.N.R. When only eighteen years of age, he entered a shipping office in Koenigsberg, Germany, where he remained for five years. He was a resident of Germany during the hectic days of the Franco-Prussian War.

Coming to America in 1874, Mr. Vincent resided in Iowa for a time and then proceeded to San Francisco and entered the shipping office of Whitelaw & Co. there.

In 1876, he came to Victoria and for a time was engaged in the customs service here. Then going to New Westminster, he entered the service of the Pioneer Fraser River Steamship Co., becoming agent for the company at Yale, which was the head of navigation for the company on the Fraser River run.

It was while a resident of Yale that Mr. Vincent made the acquaintance of Miss Catherine Ward, who later became Mrs. Vincent, and who has been well-known socially in Victoria from early times.

RETIRED IN 1919

Returning to Victoria in 1883, Mr. Vincent had charge of the offices of the Canadian Pacific Navigation Company up to the time when the Canadian Pacific Railway took over its affairs. He transferred to the transcontinental company's service and up to the time of his retirement, was auditor in the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's offices.

He retired in 1919, after serving fifty-nine years in the two related companies.

He is survived by his widow and four daughters, Miss Cicely Vincent and Mrs. Jean Willis, at the family residence, 38 Erie Street; Mrs. R. J. Jameson, Uplands, and Mrs. (Dr.) Ehrnston, in Los Angeles, and two sons, Charles Vincent, Vancouver, and Darrell Vincent, Victoria.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon, the cortege leaving Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel at 1:45 and proceeding to Christ Church Cathedral, where services will be conducted at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

London Daily Mail Reporter Here on Visit

Paul Bewsher, special correspondent of The Daily Mail, London, was in Victoria over the week-end, on the last of several important North American assignments, which included an interview with Premier Aberhart and his Social Credit policies in Alberta and witnessing Sir Malcolm Campbell drive the Bluebird over the salt beds of Utah at Salt Lake City.

Mr. Bewsher, at the present time, is following Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett on his present Dominion-wide tour.

He reported Great Britain as intensely interested in the Social Credit system in Alberta. Attention was directed on the Dominion now, as it faced the general elections.

"I've been tremendously impressed by Canada," he said, "but Victoria is a touch of home."

SAYWARD OPENS LEGION BRANCH

Officers Elected and Charter Presented to Newest Island Group

SAYWARD, Sept. 23.—A very interesting event was celebrated here on September 19, when the returned men of Sayward successfully launched Branch 147 of the Canadian Legion, to be known as the "Sayward Valley Branch." Twenty-one veterans have so far joined the branch. The occasion was made more colorful by the visit of Comrade W. Boome, fishery patrol officer, and past president of the Pender Island Branch of the Legion, who at the conclusion of an excellent address on current events and the aims and objects of the Legion presented on behalf of the provincial executive the charter of the Sayward branch. In accepting the charter on behalf of the veterans of Sayward, J. E. Armishaw made a suitable reply to Comrade Boome's felicitations.

The following were elected as the first officers of the Sayward Branch: President, J. E. Armishaw; vice-president, F. Harris; second vice-president, A. J. Bell; secretary-treasurer, D. Paidley, and auditor, J. Price.

It was decided that the branch would celebrate the coming Remembrance Day and the executive was instructed to make the necessary arrangements.

MAKES APPEAL

In accepting the office of president, J. E. Armishaw made a very forceful appeal to the members to do their utmost to make the branch not only a credit to Sayward, but also to the provincial body, this by taking a active interest in all matters pertaining to the welfare of war veterans, also those questions which affected the well-being of the people of this Province and Dominion. Mr. Armishaw also reviewed the contribution made by Sayward to the cause of the Empire during the late Great War, pointing out that Sayward established a record for the Province at that time by contributing the largest quota to the forces on a population basis. The Sayward contingent was fortunate during that long conflict as only one of its members was called upon to pay the supreme sacrifice, the late George Carnie. Several others were severely wounded.

D. Paidley was commended by the members on his untiring efforts in the organization of the branch, as without his persistent work the Sayward veterans would not have been brought together.

B.C. LUMBER HOLDS GAIN

August Exports 84,250,000 Feet, Going to Sixteen World Destinations

British Columbia waterborne lumber exports for August held steady at 84,227,120 board feet, exclusive of logs and shingle bolts, according to Provincial advices yesterday. The British Columbia product moved to sixteen major destinations around the world, and once again found healthful recovery in orders from Eastern Canada and the Atlantic seaboard.

The bulk of the buying was done by British Empire nations, of which the following shipments were typical: To the United Kingdom, 43,881,000 feet; Australia, 17,656,000 feet, Africa, 1,148,000 feet; and smaller amounts to India and the West Indies.

Vessels loading on the British Columbia coast carried lumber products to Belgium, Central America, France, Germany, Holland, India, Italy, New Zealand, both coasts of South America, South Sea Islands, the West Indies, Japan, China, Australia, Africa, and the United Kingdom and elsewhere, exclusive of movements by rail and water on this continent.

EASTERN BUSINESS

A total of nearly 10,000,000 board feet went by water to the Atlantic seaboard for the second month in succession, the exact shipment reported being 9,300,000 board feet, which was exclusive of 1,186,000 feet additional sent elsewhere by water on this continent.

No figures are available for rail haul within Canada, but the Eastern Canadian trade was reported better, with some slight stimulation of business on the Prairies. Log stocks, under accumulation earlier in the year, were comfortably less in August, it was stated.

Prices were ahead of levels a year ago.

Germany and Italy both ordered sizable quantities of British Columbia lumber during the month. Japanese buying dropped to 144,895 feet, having been under brisk accumulation in Spring before trade unrest was reflected in export figures.

HEALTH PLAN IS CRITICIZED

Vancouver Delegation Says Proposals Inimical to Low-Paid Worker

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (?).—The proposed health insurance plan recently outlined by Dr. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, requires many changes to make it "economically sound and acceptable to Vancouver, in the opinion of a special committee which submitted its report on the plan to the civic health committee today.

The scheme, in its present form, the report said, discriminates against the small wage earners and those with incomes from life savings barely large enough to keep them off relief.

INCREASE LOAD

In addition the proposed plan would increase the city's load of social service costs, which would be unacceptable under present conditions now and for some time to come.

Three recommendations were made:

1. If any such scheme were inaugurated the Provincial Government must assume the responsibility for its economic soundness.

2. Vancouver's interests must be safeguarded in that its burden will not be increased, but rather lessened.

3. Preventive health examination should be stressed.

At present the city contributes $463,638 towards the upkeep of the Vancouver General Hospital, the Provincial Government $250,536 and other sources, $407,892.

He Found That Cassowary Had Hefty Wallop

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 23 (?).—Homer F. Snow, Oakland naturalist, wondered if Punjab, Malayan cassowary at the Fleishhacker Zoo here, knew how to box. The naturalist pulled on a pair of boxing gloves and invaded the 165-pound bird's cage. Snow tapped Punjab's head. The bird retaliated by lashing out with both feet, landing a hard right and an even harder left. Snow beat a hasty retreat.

Credit Granters To Hold Banquet Tonight at Hotel

At the Empress Hotel tonight, at 6.30 o'clock, the Credit Granters' Association will hold its annual Fall banquet. President Oliver M. Prentice will preside, and all merchants, whether members of the association or not, are cordially invited to attend.

A fine programme has been arranged, and the three speakers will be Frederic Young, of Portland, retail credit man with twenty-five years' experience; Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Mines and Labor, and B. C. Nicholas, editor of The Victoria Times. They will speak on matters of particular interest to retail merchants.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate a large attendance of the retail merchants of Victoria and their senior employees.

PLANNING TO MAKE HOME IN VICTORIA IN NEXT FEW YEARS

Another admirer of Victoria has decided to make his permanent residence here within the next three years. He is W. L. L. Barker, formerly of Waco, Texas, now a Hongkong businessman.

Accompanied by Mrs. Barker he has been holidaying Up-Island for some time. After a few days here, they will travel south to Texas. Later they will return here and sail for the Orient. They are registered at the Metropolis Hotel.

Certain Industries May Disappear in Economic Progress

Professor H. F. Angus Suggests to Committee That Under Some Circumstances It May Be Better to Manufacture Elsewhere

PROFESSOR Henry F. Angus, of the University of British Columbia, holds the opinion that it might be economically sound to allow certain industries to disappear and the products of such an industry might be better brought from somewhere else. While speaking as an expert in the field of economics before the health insurance hearings committee at the Legislative Buildings yesterday afternoon, he expressed this view with respect to certain industries which might not be able to pay living wages after meeting the necessary part in the governmental programme.

This opinion was given by Professor Angus when it was suggested that the health insurance payments proposed, might be the last straw which pressed down on the industry. Industries might have to disappear or as a substitute measure, they might have to be maintained by some form of subsidy if that were deemed wise.

Hon. G. S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, propounded the question to Professor Angus as to whether an industry that could not pay standard wages should be allowed to go out of existence.

THEORETICAL ANSWER

Professor Angus replied this was a theoretical situation easier to answer than as a practical one. Theoretically, such an industry should be allowed to go and the supplies brought from somewhere else, where it was practical to manufacture under living wages.

The question that had been submitted to the speaker at the sitting of the committee was whether the health insurance measure if put in force would impose a burden and handicap in competition with industries elsewhere and would, therefore, make it impossible to operate economically. He was asked for an opinion based on the assumption that the primary medical benefits proposed under the plan could be supplied by a levy of 3 1-2 per cent on the wages of those employed in the industry. This would eliminate cash benefits. The employer was to pay 40 per cent of this or 1.4 per cent. The levy to be kept out of the employees' wages would be 2.1 per cent.

HOW TO MAKE UP

The cost of production of goods in British Columbia could be increased by the amount suggested only if first the wage bill constituted the employer's total costs or, second, if the scheme provided a benefit to the employer in that he received better work for the wages paid or eliminated other expenses which were at present incurred.

The proportion of the cost of each industry affected, which represented other than wages, had to be considered. Thus if the wages constituted 50 per cent of the cost of production, the employer would pay 50 per cent of the 1.4 per cent or seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

Incidentlly the speaker pointed out that a special case arose where the Wages Bill might be augmented by 1.4 per cent cost of the wages paid in supplying the raw material.

COMPENSATION COMES

Then there was a second condition that meant that an increase in the rate of wages was not a burden but a benefit to the industry, as it was accompanied by greater efficiency on the part of the wage earned.

The bill contemplated 1.4 per cent in the wages of the employees coupled with an obligation that an increase of 2.1 per cent of the present wages paid by the employee would be expended on the health insured.

The employee in lieu of what he paid was given the advantages of a doctor's services, hospital and dental work, etc.

SUGGESTED HANDICAP

Frank Davie, K.C., of Duncan, asked the speaker what he thought of the suggestion offered by the Vancouver Board of Trade that the insurance would place a heavier burden on the British Columbia manufacturer, handicapping him in competition with Eastern Canada.

Professor Angus said that, in the long run, it might be reasonable to expect that there would be advantages in increased efficiency on the part of the employees insured that would offset the disadvantages expected.

The speaker declared that the real question to be considered was with regard to efficiency wages. An employee who went to a doctor early and kept himself in good shape, as was to be expected under a health insurance plan, was a far more efficient worker than one who did not do so. Employers were as interested in employees getting good medical attention as in securing good food.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Mrs. C. C. Spofford was asked to speak as a member of a former committee on state health insurance. She said that while she was not authorized to speak for the Local Council of Women, representing forty-four organizations, she could say these women were in favor of some scheme of state health insurance.

Mrs. A. C. Ross, for the Canadian Daughters' League, offered some suggestions with regard to the proposed bill. She urged that women be represented on the board. She also had proposals to offer in extending the scope of the bill and also for making provision for industries coming in that were now exempted, owing to their having their own schemes.

Mrs. A. Colclough, representing the C.C.F. Women's Auxiliary, had a number of suggestions to make. She wanted leave given to employees to select other than the orthodox medical men in getting attention. She also sought to have the doctors fill prescriptions, and a number of other amendments.

Miss D. W. Atkins, for the Soroptimist Club, had a number of amendments to offer, and also wanted information respecting some features of the bill.

MORNING SITTING

Fred Brown, of Vancouver, president of the British Columbia Loggers' Association, expressed the opinion, at the morning session, that this was not an opportune time to bring forward the legislation. He further was of the opinion that the subject was one that would be better under the Federal authorities, covering the whole of the Dominion. He pointed out the danger that, like the Workmen's Compensation Act, there would be an increasing levy required from the industries as time went on, which would make it press very heavily.

NOT OPPORTUNE

D. W. Reeve, chairman of the special committee of the Vancouver Board of Trade, while expressing the opinion that there existed need for some form of state assistance for people who could not meet the need of medical attention, thought that, in large measure, care was being given through the grants to the municipalities and to the hospitals for such a purpose. The memorandum presented called for careful consideration, as it was pointed out that once such a scheme came into existence, there would be no going back on it. It should not be adopted until all the provinces had endorsed the proposition.

LOCAL HOSPITAL'S VIEW

Hugh Allan, president of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, on behalf of the board of that institution, endorsed the general principle of state health insurance, but he held that certain features of the proposed bill should be altered if it were to work properly. He felt there might be relative increases in hospital expenses, and he thought the Government should not take refuge under a limited liability clause of contributing not over $1,200,000. If this were persisted in, there was the danger that the hospitals would fall short in having to be responsible for the expenses incurred over the sum mentioned.

Dr. Cyril Wace, of the Queen Alexandra Solarium, made a strong appeal for the extension of the work in connection with the prevention of disease. He felt that too much attention could not be given to this branch of medical work, and the state should take a very strong position in this respect. Especially was this necessary in connection with the youth and by a proper development of this branch of today, future expenditures for health work would be secured.

PRAISE FOR DR. YOUNG

In connection with his presentation of the views he held, Dr. Wace paid a high compliment to Dr. H. E. Young, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health.

Describing Dr. Young as the greatest exponent of preventive medicine in the Dominion of Canada, if not on the American continent, Dr. Wace said that the province owed a great debt to Dr. Young. The praise offered to the work of Dr. Young drew from the members of the committee and others present applause.

Dr. Wace referred to the good health work carried out in the municipality of Saanich through the efforts of Dr. Young. The health inspection in that municipality had had the effect of transforming the situation from a health standpoint there.

Colin McDonald, president of the Vancouver, New Westminster and District Trades and Labor Council, who is a member of the hearings committee, asked Dr. Wace if he would suggest extending the operations of the proposed bill to all classes in the province.

The reply came that he had not thought of that. Dr. Wace added "as long as you look after the children, I am satisfied."

HEARINGS COMMITTEE

The hearing committee members who are sitting here are Dr. Alion Peebles, the chairman; Miss Grace Fairley, R.N., Vancouver; E. W. Neel, Duncan; Colin McDonald, Vancouver; Hon. G. M. Weir and Mrs. A. C. Robinson, secretary. With them are also sitting the following consultants on the bill: C. F. Davie, K.C., Duncan; Dr. A. K. Haywood, Vancouver; Hon. G. S. Pearson; Mrs. Paul Smith, M.P.P., Vancouver; Dr. H. E. Young; G. T. Cunningham, Vancouver and Dr. R. L. Pallen, Vancouver.

The presentations made by the representatives who appeared before the committee yesterday morning drew forth considerable discussion, in which, for the hearings committee, the lead was taken by Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir and Hon. G. S. Pearson. Dr. Weir pointed out that the meeting was called for the hearing of objections to the proposed bill as the desire was to make the bill as acceptable as possible.

NOT DOMINION WORK

In dealing with the subject of making the move a Dominion one, Dr. Weir pointed out to Mr. Brown that the question of health fell under the Province. There was the right in the Dominion to assist as it saw fit, but the assistance rendered by the Fedral authorities was along the line of tuberculosis or similar diseases which might be regarded as national or perhaps international plagues.

In reply to Mr. Neel, the answer was given by Mr. Brown that he did not know of any logging company that took full charge of the employees in the nature of health insurance. There were grants made to some hospitals in this connection and other ways of assisting, but no outright assumption of the matter.

Mr. Reeve, representing the Vancouver Board of Trade, wanted a general move made by the provinces before saddling this province with the task of assuming the health proposal.

Mr. Bearson pointed out that in British Columbia today practically all could get assistance in the matter of hospital treatment, as far as geography went. The whole reason for there being large sections that could not get it was that there was the lack of money to pay for the treatment. The successful working of small schemes in British Columbia had prompted the present move.

Mr. Reeve felt this was not insurance. It was compulsory charity.

To Mr. Allan, the Provincial Secretary addressed the question of whether many were being sent to the hospitals that did not need to go and could be treated at home, but that the doctors found it convenient to send them to the hospital.

The reply of Mr. Allan was that he did not think there was a great deal of this, but he feared that under the bill proposed, there might be danger of this taking place.

The committee will continue its sittings this morning at 10 o'clock.

TRUE FACTS ARE NEEDED IN HISTORY

Inspector of Education in England Gives Lecture to Victoria Group

TOO MANY SPECIALS SAYS SALTER DAVIES

"Truth in History," a subject which, to the layman, contained more real truth than poetry, was the offering of G. T. Hankin, B.A., staff inspector of education in England, given the Victoria branch of the National Council of Education at the Empress Hotel last night. Mr. Hankin is one of the party of educationists now visiting in Victoria on a cross-Canada tour.

Using as an example of the tendency of the time to make history fit into the demands, or desires, of the state and almost completely ignoring the individual, Mr. Hankin referred to an utterance by a German authority that facts unfavorable to the German nation should be swept out of history. "The German point of view is that the individual means nothing and the state means everything. To twist history is a sin, but to deceive the young is wickedness. For the proper development of the human mind, the individual must be given the best we have," Mr. Hankin declared.

INTELLECTUAL BASIS

The speaker said if one did not know the truth about his country, it was impossible to have real patriotism. Any emotion, he stated, without an intellectual basis could be swayed this way or that, and left the individual without a method of determining a right course. He asked the question: "Are we free from unconsciously twisting our history?" He was referring to the use of words in modern textbooks that have changed their meaning with the changing of conditions.

Mr. Hankin instanced the word British Empire. "In our history do we mean the first, the second, or the third British Empire, which is now the British Commonwealth of Nations? The general change of attitude is responsible for the change of ideas. In the use of the word great, in connection with nations, we give the idea that in order for a nation to be great, we must consider it in the sense of its expanse of territory. We must make an effort, if we want to have the truth of history, to consider what the smaller nations have contributed to the history of the world."

MISUSE OF PHRASES

As an Englishman, he said, he considered the emancipation of the slaves the thing he was most proud of in the history of the British Empire. In Canada, in his opinion, it was the pioneering spirit of the founders and their courage to face dangers in time of peace. The phrase, "the country is prosperous," was one of danger. People, he stated, often mistook the aggregation of wealth in the hands of a few a sign of prosperity, when what really mattered was the distribution of wealth.

The greatest danger to the teaching of history, Mr. Hankin asserted, was the personification of nations. He gave an instance, "In 1756 France was jealous of England." Nothing of the kind, he maintained. France could only have been jealous of England if every person living in the country held the same jealousy. The League of Nations, he said, was often semi-personified. The League was not as an individual, but a collection of representatives of the members of the League.

He believed that truth in history was important for the development of the individual and the search for truth the most valuable asset for a child. He fully realized it was an everlasting problem, because of the need to consider the historical attitude as the realization that everything was in a state of change and the endeavor to adjust the teaching of history to that point of view.

CHANGES OUTLINED

Salter Davies, C.B.E., M.A. (Oxon), director of education for Kent, gave a ten-minute talk. He spoke mainly of some of the methods of education. He claimed it was wrong to get the idea that education should be the giving of knowledge to create scholarships and specialists.

"Is it not a fact that the need of the average child is being sacrificed to the demands of the few? It is a mistake to direct the curricula to the demands of that few who are proceeding to the universities when we should consider equally the right of the many who are not. In England one of the greatest reforms in recent years is the creation of a new form of secondary schools designed for the need of the boys and girls between the ages of eleven and fourteen and upwards, in an attempt to give a curriculum that will give them an understanding of what life and the world really is. I am very much afraid we are teaching subjects because the teacher knows just how to teach those subjects," he said.

Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, was chairman. Sir Charles Delme-Radcliffe introduced Mr. Hankin, and the vote of thanks was tendered the speakers by Col. H. T. Goodland.

Won Championship

Saanich Jersey cattle breeders are much interested in a bull now stabled at Arthur Wright's farm at Keating. This animal, bred and owned by B. H. Bull & Sons, Ontario, won first place in the class for bulls under two years and then carried off the junior and senior grand championships at the South Saanich Agricultural Fair last week. Mr. Wright expects the bull to remain here for some time and dairymen are hopeful of improving their stock considerably. The bull's name is Brampton's Lynn Searcher, No. 72603. The dam of this bull is from the celebrated bull Bravo, No. 6262.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. THE GOVERNMENT'S RECORD

The character of the political meeting held here on Saturday night and addressed by Mr. R. B. Bennett gives point to the fact, already so apparent, that people are very much aroused over the present election campaign. The Prime Minister was in excellent fettle and very confident in his outlook, as he has the right to be for there is nothing to be ashamed of in the record of his Government which has given the country strong administration in trying times. It is not on behalf of every Government during the past five years that its head can say it has kept faith, has lived up to its contracts and has maintained the credit of a country. Mr. Bennett, however, has said this and it can be denied in no respect. In the matter of actual achievement for the benefit of the people as a whole the Conservative Government at Ottawa has done well, far better than its predecessor in office, and Mr. Bennett now is asking for the support of all those who are grateful for political services faithfully discharged.

Mr. Bennett, very naturally, lays great stress on the value of the Ottawa Agreements. They have proved, and continue to prove, an asset to the country of substantial value in the restoration of trade lost because of the depressed conditions which extended to every country in the world. As a result of them Canada's export trade to Empire countries has increased by 100 per cent; it has been increased with countries outside the Empire by 26 per cent. Under the present regime an adverse balance of trade, which had been growing to alarming proportions under the former administration, is now a rapidly increasing favorable balance. In other words, in this particular, Canada is definitely and progressively on the right side of the ledger. That in itself is a cause for every satisfaction and it is due to the fiscal policies pursued by the Government at Ottawa. Most elections in this country have been fought on the issue of fiscal policies. If these continue to occupy a foremost position in the minds of our people Mr. Bennett need have no fear of the result of the polls on October 14. His trade policy has inured to the advantage of the country in a handsome way and the country should be proportionately grateful.

There is another aspect of the Federal record of the past five years to which Mr. Bennett did well to draw attention in his speech here. He told of the attitude of his Government towards the Western provinces, which had reached a sorry plight through the spendthrift zeal of their Governments. Those provinces were saved from defaulting by the Federal Government which has been advancing, and continues to advance, them money to meet their obligations as they fall due. It is essential that the credit of those provinces should be maintained. That could not have been the case if the Dominion Government had not come to their aid. To British Columbia alone the sum of $19,000,000 has been advanced and in the way of aid to provinces no discrimination has been shown. Whatever the political stripe of their Governments the treatment was the same. Ottawa has been the fairy godmother saving the Western provinces from financial wreck.

In the course of dealing with a wide variety of subjects with which the Federal Government was concerned during the past five years Mr. Bennett explained the wheat policy and the present reason for pegging the price of wheat. Such conditions arose as a growing surplus of wheat in the country and the fact that nations hitherto Canada's customers became self supporting in their grain requirements. Moreover, Great Britain, a permanent market for Canada's grain, bonused production at home and therefore has been able to do with less of the prairie product. The situation then developed that the farmers of this country were faced with bankruptcy. The Government had to step in to save Canada's greatest industry. It guaranteed a price to the farmers for their product; they were able to maintain their industry, and now the result appears to justify the Government's courageous policy, for, having pegged the price of wheat at 87.5 cents a bushel that price today is quoted at 94 cents because of the failure of the Argentine crop. This is a happy outcome. The wheat industry has been saved and it was necessary that steps should be taken to this end or else the country would have been confronted with such a disaster as never threatened it before. The Government's course has been justified, and the farmers, if they are possessed of political gratitude, should be staunch supporters of the Conservative cause.

The financial policy of the Government has been amply vindicated. In this particular, as in the case of the wheat policy, courage marked the course of the Administration. Mr. Bennett has explained that when he proposed a refunding policy involving $600,000,000 through a domestic conversion loan he was told by the financial interests that the amount should not be more than $250,000,000. The Government persisted in converting the larger amount and it was subscribed, and because of this the country was saved $14,000,000 annually in interest charges on its debt. This policy will be pursued if the Conservatives remain in office. Mr. Bennett says that further policies on this line and in a larger way will be attempted. Moreover, steps will be taken to help the provinces and the municipalities to carry out refunding schemes as obligations fall due.

Mr. Bennett covered a wide field of Governmental activities during his address here, and in his concise outright statement of facts there is no doubt that he has cleared up misunderstandings that have existed in some minds. There is no aspect of the Government's record that he is not willing to explain to the full and he takes pride in the explanation. The accomplishments of the past five years have been marked by statesmanlike vision, the more especially in the case of such policies as those referable to trade agreements and the grain situation. Above all, every move made by the Government has been dominated by the intention to maintain the country's credit at the high pitch which it had reached prior the depression. The accomplishment in this respect is a matter of pride to every lover of his country. Mr. Bennett, therefore, can confidently appeal to the people for a renewed mandate of power with the knowledge that, at least, partially because of the Conservative policies, Canada is in the van on the road to recovery. That is a proud thought. The country has assets of many kinds that have helped her in her fight against depression. Among the personal ones occupying a foremost position is Mr. Bennett himself. The vision he has displayed under the most trying economic conditions has been of inestimable value to the Dominion. Our people should think twice before dropping the pilot who has weathered so heavy a storm.

SLEEP

One of the mysteries of sleep is that some people can do with far less than others. The popular belief is that sleep is a necessary antidote for mental and physical exhaustion. No one can explain why the rest which it means may be long or short, and in either case adequate in respect to varying types of individuals. Sleep presents many fascinating problems to which there are no satisfactory solutions. There is that problem, medically acknowledged, that the "automatic" nervous system continues to work at very much the same degree of activity during sleep as in waking hours. That means that it does not imply complete rest. The fact is, however, that it is the "higher" parts of the brain which shut down activity during sleep, but whether or not there is a special part of the brain set aside to promote sleep does not appear to be known. Pavlov, one of the greatest of modern physiologists, does not subscribe to this theory. He believes that sleep is just a habit, that it is closely associated with and induced by familiar surroundings and the common act of going to bed. This is a theory of "conditioned inhibition."

There have been some researches undertaken into the process of sleeping, not as to why it is done, but how. The "somneklnetograph" is the latest recorder of the movements of a sleeper. It can note the shifting of a forearm a matter of two inches. It has been ascertained that the movements of a sleeper vary from hour to hour. The expression "sleeping peacefully as a child" is all wrong. No one does it, not even the child. There are sleep curves, and about the only thing of value that has been discovered about them is that those curves are similar among members of the same family. The shape of the sleep curves can be varied by diet, or by criminal tendencies. A meal of indigestible food taken before going to bed agitates the curves. The criminal has a restless mentality and tosses about in bed more than the average individual.

What can be answered definitely about sleep is that the average child gets too little, in other words, does not go to bed early enough. Even in children, however, there are variations in this need and they are affected as well by climate and the seasons of the year. There is no exact rule for adults. The popular assumption is that eight hours' sleep is required, but the fact remains that many individuals in the prime of mental and bodily vigar can do with much less. It is one of the mysteries affecting sleep that when the grip on life lessens, in other words as age advances, less sleep is required. Another mystery is the fact that the loss of sleep is not so serious a matter as some people believe. It is not the lack of sleep which induces mental troubles but it is worrying over the fact that such rest is not obtainable. That is why the modern treatment of insomnia recognizes a wide variety of causes. It is worry, in fact, that is too often the cause of sleeplessness, and the antidote is, in the words of a famous Prime Minister of Britain, "to shed all worries with the trousers when going to bed."

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

This same philosophy is a good horse in the stable, but an arrent Jade on a journey.—Goldsmith.

Modern civilization has put out the spiritual Devil and produced the Demon of Dynamite.—Jefferies.

New creeds and new gospels are being preached as the only hope for the salvation of men. New schemes are being suggested and advocated for the relief of men from the curse of labor and the dread of insecurity. Under the old order it was the ambition of the individual to establish himself in security against the inevitability of old age. But experience has demonstrated that in the battle of life the victory is to the strong and that the weak have little chance of being established in security. One of the results of experience is that the resources of the state have been charged with the task of sustaining the weak in the battle with the strong.

* * *

Another of the results of experience is the formation of what is called Labor political parties. If it had not been for the formation of a Labor Party in Great Britain there might not have been today the institution known as the dole, with its assurance against poverty, privation and suffering. Why the name Labor was adopted by the comparatively new political party we do not know and cannot understand. The choice may have been due to a belief that a condition of Labor connotes or denotes a condition of servility or slavery, while there is an element of dignity in the connotation of work.

* * *

The anomaly in the designation of the new political party as a Labor Party is evident when the fact is palpable that that party is at present composed chiefly of men who do not earn their bread by the sweat of their faces, but are chiefly professional politicians who live by the use of their wits. We do not say there is anything derogatory to the character of the Labor leaders and some of their followers in this diagnosis of the situation, for the same things may be said of some of the leaders of Labor in all countries, incuding our own country. Probaby the term Labor has been adopted because it is the only collective noun which conveniently signifies "workers."

* * *

The conditions in the world today testify anew to the truth of that ancient phrase, "the foolishness of preaching." One of the most profound of philosophers and commentators, Thomas Carlyle, was a preacher, but although the sage was intended to be a preacher, he never "wagged his pow in a pulpit," probably because he could not intellectually subscribe to the creed of the church in his day. Such an obstacle would not be insurmountable in this day and generation, Carlyle saw dignity rather than servility in Labor, but he called Labor Work. Here is a part of one of his sermons:

"There is a perennial nobleness, and even sacredness, in work. Were a man ever so benighted or forgetful of his high callling, there is always hope in him who actually and earnestly works; in idleness alone there is perpetual despair. Consider how, even in the meanest sorts of labor, the whole soul of a man is composed into real harmony. He bends himself with free valor against his task; and doubt, desire, sorrow, remorse, indignation, despair itself, shrink murmuring far off into their caves. The glow of labor is a purifying fire, wherein all poison is burnt up, and of smoke itself there is made a bright and blessed flame. Blessed is he who has found his work; let him ask no other blessedness. He has a life purpose. Labor is life."

* * *

The seed of the gospel preached by Carlyle fell upon barren ground. If the Sage were alive today he would realize the foolishness or the folly of preaching to a froward and perverse generation. Work is not considered either noble or dignified. It is considered the fault of "wage slaves." Independence is not the goal of life. The chief end of too many is to "get on the dole." At one time the headquarters of the dole was so successfully raided that there was a danger it would be left as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard. It was at the time of this crisis that the institution was criticized by commentators in Canada and in other countries. Now that the system has been placed upon a permanent basis by a competent government its merits as compared with no system at all, have been generally recognized and commended.

* * *

One British newspaper commentator has been pointing the finger of scorn at Canada because the Provincial Government of Alberta purposes paying to every citizen of that province a perpetual dole of twenty-five dollars a month. The British dole is given only to the unemployed and is maintained on a contributory basis; it is, therefore, no longer a dole, but something which has been earned by work at some period in the life of the beneficiary. The Alberta dole will be a gift if paid, which may be never. It is, therefore, hardly fair to ridicule all the people of Canada because the people of one of the provinces have been deluded by the visions of a social and economic mystic.

Well Deserved Tribute

No better illustration of the deep affection that Victorians hold for Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie could have been given than that Saturday night in the Royal Victoria Theatre, when 1,700 people gave him a prolonged ovation, and cheered him to the echo several times during his address. tI indicated that, regardless of political color, the people as a whole have a deep and abiding affection for this descendant of a great and famous pioneering family.—P.C.R.

Yes, Come Along Dear

"Come on, Dicky, dear. I'm going home now. Come along darling, let's go." In the gathering dusk we heard the foregoing plaintive appeal from a dowager on Richardson Street. "He must be a stubborn little beggar," we thought as the woman continued to plead. Thinking we would like to see "little boy Dicky," we moved along a little faster and saw "Dicky." It was one of those mite-sized pomeranians.—W.J.H.

Have We Forgotten?

Around the world war memorials stand today with this inscription: "To Our Glorious Dead—1914-1918." The Marsh memorial bronze at Victoria calls it 1914-1919, but that is unimportant. The point is, have some nations already forgotten a greying generation, maimed, shell-shocked and mangled; two nations in widows' weeds; a homeless young generation of orphans, and, forever first, that silent company of millions of the earth's best who marched four abreast into eternity, in the war-to-end-wars?—S.G.

Remove Concrete "Headers"

Something ought to do done about the ear-splitting noise caused by street cars going along Government Street from Yates Street to the Parliament Buildings. It is practically impossible to make one's self heard while walking along this thoroughfare when a street car is rumbling past. We do not know just what is responsible for the noise, but someone with a knowledge of the engineering faults concerned should be instructed to remedy them.—W.I.F.

On Land and Sea

Noticed a small vessel in the Inner Harbor over the week-end flying a black, yellow and red flag. If it is a foreign emblem, international seafaring rules call for the Canadian Ensign to be flown above it when in a Canadian port . . One man thought his eyes had gone back on him in a night club recently. His foot kicked something soft and furry under the table. Investigation revealed a tame raccoon, which later was found to belong to a man who lived next to the club. . . . What some women say goes—all over the neighborhood. . . . . Victoria is a city of unusual sights. On Saturday we saw two taggers nonchalantly sitting on the sidewalk at the corner of Broad and Yates Street. They smilingly reached up and handed up tags to pedestrians from their stony perch.—G.B.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of September 24, 1885)

Distinguished Visitors—A meeting of the citizens' committee was held at the City Hall last night, the Mayor presiding. It was resolved to tender a public banquet to the Marquis of Lansdowne, and the chairman was requested to telegraph Ottawa to ascertain when the Marquis and the other visitors are expected to arrive at Victoria.

Street Improvements—An excellent grade has been made of Queen's Avenue, the new road through the Finlayson State, connecting with King's Road. The latter has been recently macadamized, and a splendid roadbed made. Jumbo is busy breaking the rock blasted out of John Street, which is being placed on various neighboring streets. Government Street has been macadamized from the bridge to its junction with the Esquimalt Road, and there will be no further complaints about that thoroughfare, as it is now in splendid condition. John Street has been graded and partly macadamized, as also Bridge Street, and access to the many new dwellings in the neighborhood of Rock Bay is now excellent.

The Rice Mill—Hall & Ross are the proprietors of the rice mill on Store Street, at Dickson, Campbell & Co.'s wharf. A large brick boiler and engine house, with detached chimney, is now being built. Workmen are also busy placing the machinery for the mill in position, and it is expected that the work of manufacturing flour and preparing the rice for market will be commenced by the beginning of next year.

ST. AGATHA'S SCHOOL

Sir,—May I express through the medium of your paper the great pleasure it affords me to hear that St. Agatha's School for junior boys and girls has been re-established in Victoria. As the mother of a very successful student who gained valuable tuition in her early school days in this most estimable school, I feel I cannot emphasize too much the benefits derived from the individual supervision, together with the wide curriculum, illustrating education is an atmosphere, a discipline, a life. In these days of keen competition one cannot place too high the importance of alertness and knowledge, and upon following the lives of many students who were fortunate enough to receive their early training in St. Agatha's School under the capable and efficient teaching of its principal, Mrs. H. Large, and her assistant, Miss Hope Large, I find many who are bursary holders and have won scholarships for French, English and mathematics.

May I again wish Mrs. and Miss Large every success in the re-establishment of the school.

(MRS.) W. H. HARVEY.

FRIDAY THE THIRTEENTH

Sir,—In the issue of The Times of September 13 we read different opinions about this "unlucky day," Friday the 13th. Having been born on February 13 and considering my life's experiences, I find that the most important things happened to me on the thirteenth. I am not superstitious. I do not believe in numerology or fortune telling of any kind, though many good things come to me on the thirteenth, they also come on other days.

Superstition is suggestion passed down from generation to generation and becomes auto-suggestion to those who believe in it. Suppose a babe is born on Friday the 13th; this babe knows nothing about superstition, but parents and those whose charge it is teach it by giving suggestions which will manifest in auto-suggestion in the child's brain; then, if such a person sees a black cat walking across its path, or if he breaks a mirror by accident, or walks under a ladder, at once he will contact a certain faculty of his mind which has registered the teaching of this particular idea. The mind gets to work and creates auto-suggestion in the form of fear, thus causing a disturbance in the proper functioning of the body and mind affecting the safety of the person in mind and action; through this accidents happen, wrong deals are made, etc. The same applies to fortune telling of every description; it is merely a suggestion by the fortune-teller to the person at first, but becomes auto-suggestion by that person, thus creating materializations through the action of the mind, but here again we must consider the law of God. "Man proposes; God disposes." For this reason most of the teaching of mind fails to materialize because of the poor understanding of God and His law.

It is foolish to auto-suggest health while actually continuing to cause sickness through improper living. One cannot deny pain and sickness while it actually exists. Teachings of this kind are superstitions and erroneous like the belief in the black cat, etc. Another mistake prevails among the people today: the suggestion of the right to equality in money and other possessions, while the auto-suggestion of nearly everyone is the desire for all they can get of similar things to those another one has. It is difficult to find a person who is not a capitalist in the true sense. This belief in equality also comes under the law of superstition, because there is no equality and will not be for thousands of years judging from the conception and stupidity of man today. One cannot attain a prosperous life by thinking we all should be poor; one cannot live in the light and the dark at the same time; these are simple rules of God's laws. The thought of poverty is a negative force easily contacted; for this reason we have so many poor. Even if one hopes to be rich, if such a one cannot eliminate the negative thought of poverty he will not reach the positive force of prosperity. These are simple laws laid out by God in the Creation. If we create fear by the sight of a black cat, number thirteen and so forth, we break a law of God, which is confidence in ourselves; therefore one cannot expect luck, but may, by dispelling such fear at once with the auto-suggestion that a cat, or a number, cannot be harmful or affect our destiny.

There still seems to be a great tendency among the people towards superstition and old beliefs. Man's whole solution lies within himself according to his own thought and action.

The time used is Pacific standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of low water.

To find the depth of water on the sill of the Esquimalt drydock, add 18.6 feet to the height of high water as above given.

To find the depth of water on the sill of the Songhees drydock, add 30 feet to the height of high water as above given.

THE LOTTERY

Lottery games have been much in the public mind recently. In spite of prohibition, millions of dollars are being collected annually by various sweepstakes organized in foreign countries.

There is an important investigation in New York of the policy racket, which is a form of lottery, where poor fish of all colors are trimmed at odds so strong against them as to make any mathematician gasp for breath.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, together with many women's organizations, is trying to divert some of these millions of dollars from the cesspools of the American gambling underworld into the worthier cause of charity. Judicial decisions have held that where skill or judgment is exercised, as in the case of bridge, there can be no lottery or gaming. But in the case of pure lottery, its legality is doubtful even when applied to charities. A test case in the federal courts will decide whether a lottery run purely for charity is legal or not.

The word "lottery" has no definite significance. Legally it is applied to games of chance or determining prizes by lot. Way back in Biblical days lots were drawn and when Rome was at its height Heliogabalus ran a lottery in which the prize was either a golden vase or six flies. The go-getting salesmen of the sixteenth century Italian republics incorporated the lottery principle in the sale of merchandise and later lotteries became popular as an aid to governmental finance. But the financial drain among the poor became apparent even to the money grabbing governments, and about one hundred years ago lotteries were suppressed everywhere except in Holland, Spain, Italy and Denmark, where they still flourish.

In the United States the first national lottery was held in 1776 and most states legalized it for the purpose of reducing taxes or of securing public buildings, but here also the government later forbade the use of the mails for its promotion.

To any student of gambling it is apparent that, with or without prohibition, lotteries and other forms of vicious gambling always have flourished. Mathematicians can shout until they are blue in the face that a lottery is a snare and a delusion and that anyone playing it is doomed to lose, which is perfectly true. The fact remains that lotteries cater to an irresistible emotion, hope, which springs eternal. The more abject the situation of the person, the blinder the hope. One who invests in a lottery ticket carries a big chunk of hope in his vest pocket, mathematics or no mathematics.

It is this psychological factor that has, through the ages, defeated the severest prohibition. The question is, shall we allow the underworld to collect yearly a tribute of millions of dollars, which, in spite of repeal, still renders them so powerful, or shall we face the nasty mess squarely and eliminate the more vicious abuses and at least give the sucker a better mathematical break?

The example of France possibly points the way to a solution. All gambling games are legalized and controlled by the state, which collects the "kitty" for charity, while lotteries aer strictly prohibited except for charities and fine arts.

THE UNLUCKIEST HAND

Sometimes bridge is at best a lottery. To prove that you never can be sure of anything, here is the unluckiest hand I ever saw:

NORTH

♥ A J 8 6 2
♦ 9 7
♣ A 10 5 4 3 2

WEST
♠ K
♥ K 10 9 7 5 4

EAST

SOUTH

South thought he was safe when he played the hand at six spades redoubed. He had twelve seemingly sure trump tricks. But West opened the queen of diamonds and East took the ace and led back a club. What could South do? Ruffing with the ace would set up West's king and ruffing low would allow West to overruff. South was set one trick and I deeply sympathize with him.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question—What is a "rebiddable suit?"

Answer—A rebiddable suit is one which can be bid twice, even though the partner has not shown by raising it that he has trump support. The weakest suit that should be rebid is Q-J-10 x x, five cards, including three honor cards. A-K-x-x-x or any six-card suit is rebiddable.

Two city club members were having a heated argument in the club lounge. Every moment their words became more personal. Finally one said:

"You've enough tin in your head to make a kettle."

"And you've got enough water in your head to fill it," was the reply.

At that a quiet member stood up. "And both of you have enough gas to boil it," he observed, and vanished from the room.

Child First Asset Of Nation Asserts. Scots Educationist

D. D. Anderson, H.M. Inspector of Schools for Renfrew and Argyll, Scotland, Addresses Big Group of Victoria Teachers

"YOU are a privileged people here in Canada, living in a land of great promise, full of great natural resources. And in thinking of natural resources, do not think only of your wheat, your minerals and your timber. Greater than all these are the children, the moulding of whom into a fine type of men and women for your commonwealth is a great privilege that rests with you teachers. This part of Canada's natural resources, judging by what I have seen in your schools, is magnificent. It is up to you to make the most of them. Keep your ideals and their ideals high. Hitch your wagon to a star and address yourselves to your noble task with valiant hearts."

In this eloquent closing paragraph, D. D. Anderson, M.C., H.M. inspector of schools for the Counties of Renfrew and Argyll, Scotland, closed an address to about 175 members of the Victoria and District Teachers' Association present at a tea given by the society yesterday afternoon in honor of Major Fred J. Ney and the twelve British directors of education here under the auspices of the National Council of Education.

HEART-TO-HEART TALK

It was an intimate heart-to-heart talk rather than an academic or technical address that Mr. Anderson gave, the first part being taken up with some entertaining and racy as well as enlightening reminiscences of his personal experiences as inspector, and only the latter part crystalizing the more serious thought inspired by these. While for the most part he confined his comments to education and educational methods in the Old Land, Mr. Anderson broke away in one instance to cite, as an instance of the "misfit" application of routine curriculum, the case of a school in a Ukrainian settlement in Canada where the children were being given three French classes a week.

"One cannot help thinking that they could have been much more profitably employed during this time, particularly as a very small minority, I am informed, will ever reach the university," said the speaker.

IMPROVED EQUIPMENT

Scotland had greatly improved her standards of school equipment in recent years. As compared with a generation ago, the buildings were improved beyond recognition; not only better to look at, but with more "workable" and pleasing classrooms, more spacious, fitted with single desks and good blackboards.

Moreover, instead of the dragooning and regimentation of years ago, one was conscious now of a freedom in the atmosphere. The attitude of the teachers had changed. Typical, he hoped, was the order in which one teacher had arranged the objectives sought, this placing formation of character first and the "provision of information" last. Second in the list had been the development of the child's physique; third, intelligence, the development of understanding, the mind trained, not merely stuffed with facts; fourth, manners, speech, deportment, all of primary importance, yet too often missed in the child's training.

"This man put information last. It is too often put first in the schools, and made the be-all and end-all," Mr. Anderson thought. The ideal teacher, he agreed with Stephen Leacock, should be able to kindle and keep in the pupil's heart a determination to make of himself something that counted with mental power and moral worth.

"BE ENCOURAGING!"

Inspectors as well as teachers were advised to be encouraging. Make the child feel at ease. Firmness, if necessary, but not harshness. A kind word, spoken at the proper time, might be a permanent force in the moulding of the child's character, in the directing of a life.

Mr. Anderson humorously presented the case of the school inspector in Scotland, "a body of men created to see that the ratepayers got value for their money," and as such regarded as an honorable profession. They covered a wide area, embracing widely differing conditions; schools, such as some of those in Glasgow with from 1,600 to 1,700 pupils; others, like a school on the little Island of Iona, with but five children on the roll; children from five to six years of age; or, in some of the adult educational schools, students as old as sixty-five years.

Inspectors traveled by land, water and air today. An old gentleman who recalled the dread with which the teacher of his had heralded the visit of an inspector had said in recent years: "Poor teachers: even from the clouds the inspector descends upon them."

"HOWLERS"

The equivalents of schoolboy howlers, but applying to parents as well as school children, were frequently met with by the inspectors. One parent sent the following note: "Please send Johnny to the clinic with his face. He has had it a long time and it seems to be spreading." Among the amusing "howlers" encountered in schoolboy examination papers was this concerning Christianity: "Christianity was introduced into England by Julius Caesar in 54 B.C."

MAJOR NEY

Major Fred J. Ney, vice-president and honorary organizer of the Overseas Education League, also introduced to the gathering, spoke very appreciatively of the warmth of the hospitality the British educationists had received on this tour through the Dominion. This reception by the Victoria teachers was the first gathering of the kind during the present tour, and all the distinguished guests, he was assured, had greatly enjoyed the attention.

Thanks were also expressed to Dr. S. J. Willis, provincial superintendent of education, for many past favors as well as the kind words of greeting spoken by Dr. Willis on this occasion in introducing himself and Mr. Anderson. This was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Overseas Education League, and their guests, on this occasion, were not merely twelve directors of education, "but a team of jolly good fellows, sometimes referred to as the twelve apostles."

Reference was also made by Major Ney to the very successful and happy experiment carried out by the Overseas Education League during the past Summer, when a party of Canadian secondary and high school students had been taken overseas, visiting Scotland and England. By some regarded as a rather dubious experiment, it had, on the contrary, had the most gratifying results, the students showing the most boundless enthusiasm, and obviously enjoying every moment spent in the historic spots of the Old Land.

ATTRACTIVE FUNCTION

Yesterday's function given by the Victoria and District Teachers' Association in honor of the visiting British directors of education was most charmingly carried out by a committee headed by the president, Miss M. N. McKillican, of North Ward School, with the secretary, Miss Frances T. Brown.

The tea was in the lower lounge at the Empress Hotel, which was informally arranged, with a long buffet down the middle of the room. Presiding at the table, which held attractive bowls of "charming" dahlias in bright salmon and pink shades, were Mrs. K. Ford, Miss Olive Heritage, Miss Annie M. Patterson and Miss Isla Tuck.

After tea Dr. Willis was asked to introduce the two speakers, Major Ney and Mr. Anderson, after Miss McKillican had addressed a few words of greeting to the visitors. Those present in addition to these named, being Dr. J. E. Smart (director of education for Acton, London), Thomas B. Tilley (director of education for Durham), J. A. Peart (director of education for Winchester), T. J. Rees (director of education for Swansea), W. A. F. Hepburn (director of education for Ayrshire), and W. A. Brockington (director of education for Leicestershire).

SAYS AVIATION BUREAU NEEDED

H. H. Stevens Would Create Department of Transportation and Communications

OTTAWA, Sept. 23 (CP).—Establishment of a department of transportation and communication in Canada was urged here tonight by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction party leader. This department he would establish partly to handle Canada's railways, "but more particularly to deal with aviation which has been greatly neglected in this country." He referred to importance of aviation routes to the Northern sections of the Dominion.

Ottawa, the centre of the Dominion Civil Service, heard the Reconstruction party leader declare unequivocally for the merit system, which he claimed to have supported ever since 1911. "I am today, as then, in favor of the merit system," he said. He carried this declaration to the point of stating he "would correct the injustice" which he claimed to have been done to the Civil Service in the appointment of two members of Parliament to deputy ministerships recently.

WAS AMAZED

"When I saw in the press that the Prime Minister had appointed two members of Parliament to be deputy ministers over the head of officers who had carried on the work for two years, I was amazed. The two men appointed are my friends, but if entrusted with office, that injustice will have to be corrected, and I will let no reasons of friendship stand in the way of its being done."

To veterans Mr. Stevens promised a permanent parliamentary committee to hear their complaints and advise the Government as to meeting them. It was his intention the advice of the committee should be needed. Means must be found for insuring fair and just treatment to the men who fought Canada's fight overseas and were entitled to be cared for.

Superannuation Bill of $81.33 Is Ordered Paid

The Esquimalt Council last night authorized payment of $81.33 to the Provincial Government as interest claimed by the provincial superannuation commissioner on the municipal debt for back service accounts.

A move to have the matter tabled for two weeks, so that results of Oak Bay's refusal to pay their assessment might be learned, was defeated. This measure was introduced by Councillor Harry Hodgson and Fred G. Eaton.

Councillors approving the measure felt that in the event of any success on Oak Bay's part, a refund would be made to Esquimalt. It was suggested the council was duty bound to pay the sum, under terms of the Superannuation Act passed at the last session of the Legislature.

C.C.F. FAVORS UNIFICATION

J. S. Woodsworth Says Government Should Take Over Railways for People

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23 (CP).—Unification of Canadian transportation and communication systems under a scheme that would place the welfare of the people above the interest of bondholders was advocated here tonight by J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation.

Opening his campaign for re-election in Winnipeg North Centre, the constituency he has represented in Parliament since 1921, Mr. Woodsworth declared the foundation stone of the C.C.F. movement has the placing of the needs of the people above property rights.

OBJECTIVES OF WORKERS

Mr. Woodsworth drew on the platform of the Independent Labor Party when he was first elected to show the ideals of the workers had not been foresaken today. Joining of farm bodies and other organizations had resulted in formation of the C.C.F. with its objective of establishing a co-operative commonwealth.

"Ultimately the great transportation systems and communication system will be taken over by a Canadian Government," said Mr. Woodsworth in declaring the unification that would follow would not be the type of amalgamation envisioned for protection of bondholders.

THREE HURT IN CAR CRASH AT LADYSMITH

LADYSMITH, Sept. 23.—Edith Ward, nineteen, of Caledonia Avenue, Nanaimo, was thrown through the windshield of the car in which she was riding yesterday, when the kingpin of the steering gear broke on the Island Highway, one mile north of Ladysmith. She was taken to Ladysmith General Hospital, where the wound at the base of the scalp required eight stitches.

Patrick George, of Chemainus, was also treated for bad cuts about the face, while Dorothy Thomas, eighteen, of Victoria, received minor cuts and bruises. The driver of the car, Thomas Gould, of Cedar, escaped lightly. The car was a total wreck.

FIFTEEN DIE IN SMASH

ROME, Sept. 23 (AP).—Reports from the town of Terni said tonight fifteen persons had been killed or injured in a wreck between motor and steam passenger trains near the village of Nera.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HAS SESSION AT DUNCAN

Rally Day was observed by the Sunday school of the United Church at Duncan at the Sunday morning service, which was attended by the teachers and scholars. The superintendent, Arnold Flett, was in charge of the service, assisted by the pastor, Rev. W. F. Burns. A chorus by the girls' choir, under the leadership of Mrs. P. R. Dobson; a hymn by the Sunday School, and two vocal solos by Mrs. N. McIntosh, Mill Bay, comprised the special music.

Mrs. T. C. Robson spoke to the primary department; the teen-age scholars and adults listened to a helpful address from J. M. Thomas, principal of Cobble Hill High School, and H. Driver led the responsive Scripture lesson. The offering was received by Wilmer Van Norman and David Driver.

DICKIE SPEAKS AT ROYAL OAK

Federal Candidate for Nanaimo Aided by F. S. Cunliffe and R. A. Wootton

C. H. Dickie, Federal Conservative candidate for the Nanaimo riding, opened his Saanich campaign at Royal Oak last evening. He was supported by F. S. Cunliffe, Nanaimo, and R. A. Wootton, Victoria. Brian Hoole occupied the chair.

"There are no C.C.F. followers here; you all look like sane and sensible people to me," remarked Mr. Dickie as he surveyed the audience. The C.C.F., he said, was but a stepping stone to Communism and anarchy. He predicted that if the party was in power in Canada the Communist element would have complete control of it within six months.

Dealing with the former Government of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Mr. Dickie accused its members of pouring millions of dollars into the United States through tariffs unfavorable to farmers, and claimed that the C.N.R. had been operated for the good of the Government rather than for Canada as a whole. He also decreed that, if elected, Mr. King would spend billions of dollars and impose a staggering burden of taxation.

"The Bennett Government has been through five of the most trying years in Canadian history without a scar or barnacle upon the ship of state," asserted Mr. Dickie. "If we are to be saved, Mr. Bennett is the only man who will be able to put Canada upon a paying basis. He saved the Prairie Provinces from bankruptcy and has plans for the future which merit the confidence of every thinking voter," he closed, amid applause.

Mr. Wootton related how the King Government had constructed three palatial and unnecessary steamers and started work upon enormous hotels as a sop to the people when its members tried to bluff electors into returning them to power. He told of British Columbia's sufferings from fruit, vegetables and meat products dumped into the province by Liberal trade policies.

He urged those present to vote Conservative because they could be assured that Mr. Bennett would carry out all his promises.

Mr. Cunliffe described Liberal posters stating that the King Government would regain markets lost by the Conservatives. To him they were insidious propaganda which would only be swallowed by morons. He believed that the King Government would allow foreign powers to dump their goods into Canada with disastrous results.

Under the Liberal Government annual exports of farm products to the United States dropped from $191,000,000 annually to $7,000,000. Butter exports dropped from 6,000,000 pounds to 4,000 pounds; fresh beef from 35,000,000 pounds to 169,000 pounds; eggs from 200,000 dozen to 600 dozen, and apples from 486,000 barrels to 3,000 barrels. This had been caused by the King Government failing to protest against unfavorable tariffs.

Mr. Cunliffe told how the lumber industry had progressed during the past few years through new markets found by the Conservative Government and of how trade had increased. Dealing with Section 98 of the Criminal Code, he explained that it penalized any person who advocated overthrow of the Government by force or violence and was passed for the protection of law-abiding citizens. The same law was in effect in Great Britain under the name of "sedition." He stated that the C.C.F. and Liberals advocated repeal of the section for vote-grabbing purposes.

W. R. Wormleighton sang a song and also joined Mrs. Dickie in a duet. Refreshments brought the meeting to a close.

WE ENGINEER EVERY SAFETY FACTOR INTO OUR CARS except two — ROAD AND DRIVER

This advertisement is the twelfth of a series, pointing out how you can meet us half-way in making Canada's streets and highways safer.

How to Estimate

HIDDEN SAFETY

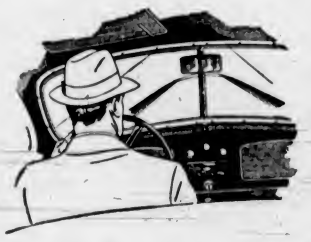

by Quality You Can See

NEXT TIME you look at a new car, take a tip from the "appraiser's" book. Slam the doors and pound the side panels. Do you sense that solidity which means strength and safety—or does the body seem flimsy and "tinny"?

Test the performance—the brakes—the steering. Has the car an ample margin of speed and "pick-up"—do the brakes stop you quickly, smoothly, without swerving—is the steering light, responsive and steady throughout the entire driving range?

Remember, much of the enjoyment you get out of a new car depends on the safety built into it. And the best way to measure safety is by quality you can see!

What GM Quality means

"Not Only Better.. but Safer Cars"

OVER the blueprints, along the assembly lines, on the Proving Ground, the engineers of General Motors plan and strive to make not only better but safer cars.

As a result, Fisher Ventilation keeps the inside of windshields and windows from fogging in cold weather or rain. When we build 80 horsepower into an engine, we engineer 500 horsepower into the brakes. Knee-Action increases not only the comfort of driving—but the safety and control of the car as well. Newest of all safety developments is the "Turret Top" Body by Fisher, which puts over your head a protective roof of solid seamless steel.

Each year adds to the safeguards, but one thing no motor car builder can supply—a pair of capable hands on the steering wheel, and an alert and reasonable brain to govern what they do.

Won't you remember that when you're driving—and meet us halfway in helping to make your motoring safe?

What Today Means

"LIBRA"

If September 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a.m., from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a.m., from 12 noon to 2 p.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m.

You may be able to accomplish more this day through giving encouragement either by example, or verbal expression, than by any other means. Influence conducive to indolence must be guarded against. Haphazard methods in business are apt to prove expensive, so it will pay to be on the lookout for them. Neglecting to read letters or business documents, may also be the cause of trouble this day, so use caution in this respect. Social activities should be governed by conservative judgment, especially in the selection of entertainment and environment. It will be very easy to arouse personal criticism this day, so be discreet about what you say, or do. Married and engaged couples and those captivated by someone's charms, will show wisdom if they practice modesty of demeanor, and good taste in dress, so as to avoid offending those inclined to be supercritical.

If a woman and September 24 is your birthday, you will be wise never to permit ambition for social position, riches or luxuries to sacrifice the greatest treasure of all—love. The loyal deep affection of someone may be instrumental in bringing into your life far more happiness than wealth can ever buy. You cannot afford to waste your time on trifles, as you have probably the ability to do constructive thinking and work that can be of much value, resulting possibly in financial gain. Your associates may have a decided influence on you, so it may pay to select your friends discriminately. Interior decorating, window dressing, brokerage, demonstrating, lecturing and selling are excellent activities in which to engage. A matrimonial career should prove very desirable.

The child born on September 24 may, when it reaches its teens, be inclined to be supercilious, which, if not corrected as soon as it becomes noticeable, will be a grave error on the part of its parents. In most other respects it will be very lovable.

If a man and September 24 is your natal day, you have probably the gift of doing well whatever you undertake. You are capable of planning in a big way, and as a rule should be successful. Art, music, acting, politics and journalism, are promising vocational activities from which to select a career.

Miss M. McCuaig, Western Supervisor of Victorian Order of Nurses, Arrives in Victoria—Maternal Mortality Decreases Through Expert Care

British Columbia may well be proud of the fact that only fully trained nurses in public health service are being employed by the Victorian Order of Nurses, was the opinion of Miss Mary McCuaig, Western supervisor of the V.O.N. in Canada, upon her arrival at the Empress Hotel yesterday on her semi-annual visit to the West.

Miss McCuaig's field includes Northern and Western Ontario and the four Western Provinces, so her comments on standards in British Columbia are particularly flattering to the nursing standards in this part of Canada.

DECREASE IN MORTALITY

Under the V.O.N., the maternal mortality in Canada is being rapidly reduced among patients who come within the care of this splendid organization. This in itself is eloquent testimony to the efficiency of a group who work almost entirely among the under-privileged and rural classes.

Co-operating very closely with the Provincial Department of Health, the Victorian Order, it is anticipated, will establish another branch in British Columbia. In this connection Miss McCuaig said "all funds are spent in the localities in which they are collected. No district contributes to the support of the national organization, although the national bears all expense of transfer of nurses from one part of Canada or one district to another."

MEN ON COMMITTEE

While Victoria has always had a local board composed entirely of women, Miss McCuaig cited cases of towns where men were appointed to the committee with distinct advantage because of their business connections and practical outlook. An effectively functioning board intimately informed as to local conditions is, of course, a sine qua non to successful results. The nurses are a standardized group for the whole Dominion.

Miss McCuaig has had wide experience in her profession.

She is a graduate of the Toronto General Hospital, and has done a great deal of institutional work in both Canada and the United States. During the Great War she served with No. 2 Canadian Stationary Hospital in France, returning to do post-graduate work in maternity nursing until 1926, when she entered the public health nursing field.

After organizing a Victorian Order district in Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, she was transferred to Edmonton, returning later to the national office at Ottawa. Since 1930, she has held her present position of Western supervisor.

Organizing Girls Into Choir Group

An exceptional opportunity for ex-High School girl choir members to take up choral work in a serious way, that will eventually equip them for admission to the more experienced adult choirs of the city, is offered in a proposal made during the past few days by Frank Tupman, well-known choir leader of the city.

Mr. Tupman intends opening a "continuation class" for these voices, and hopes, in the course of time, to create choral material of the very best type to act as "feeders" to existing choirs of the city. Tomorrow evening, at 7:30 o'clock, in the schoolroom of the First Baptist Church, Quadra Street, he will hold an organization meeting for the purpose of discussing the matter with parents of girls between the ages of seventeen and twenty-three or twenty-four, and hopes to be able to register enough voices to begin classes almost immediately.

"Constantly I have girls coming to ask me if a group could not be formed. For two years I have had it in mind that a choral organization of some kind should be formed to take care of these fresh young voices as they pass out of the high school, many of them still anxious to carry on their choral singing, but unfortunately allowed to drift away because they cannot be absorbed into the existing choirs," said Mr. Tupman, in explaining the object of the intended "continuation class." He will be glad to give parents, or the girls themselves, further information on application to G 1352.

Jane Dixon Says:

IT ISN'T NECESSARY TO CRUSH THE SPIRIT AND JOY OUT OF A GIRL IN ORDER TO TURN HER OUT A PROPER YOUNG LADY

Fathers of motherless daughters, please do try to remember that because you are left as sole custodian of your child does not give you licence to set yourself up as a tyrant.

It is not necessary to crush the spirit and the joy out of a girl in order to turn her out a proper young lady.

There is a point where guardianship and protection end, where tyranny and oppression begin.

Stop short of this point, for beyond it lies either a desperate rebellion that will disappoint or shame you, or the dull acquiescence of an automaton in whom hope, ambition, youth are dead.

Dear Jane Dixon: At twenty-one, I am already disappointed in life.

I live with my father who is strict. I have never worked, and in this depression a job seems hopeless. Have never had a date at my home. My dad even is strict about what girls I have for my companions—there's only three he approves. I know if he didn't happen to fancy a boy I might choose for a friend he'd forbid my having anything to do with that boy.

Dad seems to have the idea I should go with one boy only, and marry that one. I'm not ready for marriage and I want to have different boys as my friends.

The boys I have liked have gotten tired meeting me away from my home and I don't blame them.

At twenty-one, I feel dull and out of things. I am fairly attractive and try to dress as neatly and as well as I can.

Life has me down and I just don't know what to do about it. I so want to find work and forget the things I've been brooding over.

I want to find some real friends of my own selection, not those who have been picked for me.

I want to change my life and I want to get something out of living. Most of all I want happiness and contentment. Can it be found or is it just a dream?

Am I asking too much of life?—Rochelle.

THERE IS PLENTY OF HAPPINESS

Answer: If you are asking too much of life, my dear girl, then the whole world is wrong because practically everyone in it is asking for the same thing you are.

It is the right of every human being to be happy, so when you seek the joy in living you search only for that which is your just heritage.

You bet there is plenty of happiness in this old sphere. I've found great rich veins of it myself and am still mining it merrily. So there, you have first-hand information from an old-time miner.

I don't know so much about contentment because I never look for it. Contented persons are likely to be fat or fatuous, or both. They are given to sitting in rocking chairs with their feet on a hassock instead of kicking up the dust.

I'd rather be discontented so I'll keep climbing hills to see what's on the other side.

BE FRANK WITH DAD

Have you ever tried making a confidant of your father? I'm afraid your attitude is that of a prisoner toward her keeper. You are twenty-one, a grown woman, and you should have the courage to be frank with your father, to let him know it is time the relations between you change—time he becomes your advisor and your friend instead of your boss without reason.

The chances are he doesn't realize you've grown up. He still thinks of you as the girl-child left in his care. Invariably fathers, who become sole custodians of daughters, are conscious of their inadequacy for the job and lean backward on discipline and on caution.

Explain to your father that, as an adult, you require more freedom, more room in which to move about and participate in life and in work. Tell him you will marry when the right man comes along, but that in the meantime you feel it is your right as an individual to enjoy friendships with young men and young women who interest you and who are interested in you. If you lack the courage to do this, have some understanding older friend or member of your family do it for you.

Let me know what happens.

Informal Dance Is Held Jointly By O.E.S. Groups

Dancers to the number of approximately 200 enjoyed a programme of modern music played by a four-piece orchestra last night, when "The Starlets" and Victoria Chapter No. 17, Order of Eastern Star, entertained at a delightful dance and card party at the Shrine Auditorium.

Mr. A. Florence, Mrs. H. Bernen, Miss Bessie Cruickshanks, Mrs. M. Shepherd and Miss Gem Krown composed the dance committee, and Miss Edith King convened the cards.

The banquet hall was beautifully decorated with a profusion of autumn flowers, and dainty vases of flowers were arranged at the tables for the sit-down supper, which was served at 11 o'clock.

Ancient Winchester Common Heritage Of British Peoples

J. A. Peart, Director of Education for One-Time Capital of England, Addresses Women's Canadian Club on Cathedral and City

INTERPRETED in terms of much that stands for civilization in this country, as in the Old Land, Winchester, the ancient capital of England, famous for its cathedral and as an educational centre, was graphically pictured in a delightful lantern lecture given by J. A. Peart, director of education for Winchester, at a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel.

"It is my happy lot every year to meet boys and girls and teachers from Canada who come to Winchester, and show them over the city. We feel that we are just showing them what is their own, for Winchester and its cathedral, its traditions and its history, are the common heritage of the whole British people," said the speaker, in the preface to his lecture.

THE CATHEDRAL

With very fine slides to illustrate the architectural detail, Mr. Peart told the history of the present cathedral. The longest of all the English cathedrals—larger than any cathedral in the world, with the exception of St. Peter's in Rome—it was built in the thirteenth century, on the site of earlier cathedrals or churches, among which the most important were the Saxon and the Norman, the latter erected in the eleventh century. The magnificent simplicity of the Norman work, still seen in the transepts, was well illustrated in the pictures shown, and very fine slides also pictured the choir screen, the reredos, the richly-carved choir stalls, and some of the chantry chapels with their effigies. One of the oldest works of the kind in England was the iron grill. Reference was also made to the bones of Saxon kings buried in the cathedral.

OTHER INTEREST

Apart from the cathedral the city abounds in monastic and other historic relics. Wolvesey Castle, founded by Henry De Blois, and for a long time the residence of the bishops; the house built for Nell Gwyn; the hospital or almshouse of St. Cross, another of Henry De Blois' foundations, which still serves its original function of providing lodging for a certain number of poor; the church of St. Swithin; Winchester College, and the College of St. Mary, founded in the fourteenth century by William of Wykeham.

HISTORIC GATES

Of the walls which originally surrounded the city of Winchester, only the thirteenth century West Gate, above which is an interesting museum with many relics of Saxon and earlier times, and the King's Gate remain. One of the fascinating relics preserved in the museum is the first standard English bushel.

The origin of the expression, "Even the walls have ears," was traced to the "King's Lug," or "King's Ear," a curtained part of the wall in the old castle where Parliament sat in the ancient days. Behind this curtain, screened from view, the King could listen to the proceedings.

One of the souvenirs of romantic history in Winchester is King Arthur's round table, "believed to be the one at which King Arthur and his knights sat."

An interesting part of the recital yesterday had to do with the Winchester Cathedral broadcast last Christmas, and the hope was expressed that many Canadians would listen in again this year, as the singers received great pleasure in the knowledge that people in the far-flung parts of the Empire were thus able to join in worship.

Mrs. S. J. Willis presided at yesterday's meeting, and the thanks of the audience were expressed to the speaker and lantern operator, Mr. Huxtable, by Mrs. W. G. Wilson.

"But remember, my boy," said the producer, "the audience will be thinking of you all the time."

"How do you make that out?" demanded the other.

"Why, they'll be picturing the deuced fine time you are having with the pretty housemaid in the servants' hall."

Gladys Glad On Beauty

"Scientists say that, although most people don't realize it while they are cradled in the arms of Morpheus, every normal individual changes her position when sleeping from twenty to forty-five times every night. This, they state, is the body's natural process of resting every muscle in turn. And the changes in position, being natural, in no wise interfere with the beneficial effects of the individual's slumber.

And I consider sleep—eight hours of it—plus relaxation in the sun every afternoon, as the most beneficial beautifier.

While the amount of sleep obtained nightly is important, the quality of that sleep is of even greater consequence. The girl, for instance, who tosses around restlessly all night and cannot seem to lure the sandman her way, certainly doesn't derive much benefit from her night's sleep. To be truly restful, sleep must be sound, and complete mental and physical relaxation must be attained. Light, disturbed slumber does not greatly refresh and rejuvenate, and unfortunatel there are a good many girls who find it difficult to sleep well for one reason or other.

HOW TO INDUCE REAL REST

However, there are a number of things that can be done to insure restful sleep. And they are far more effective than counting sheep, too. When you are ready to retire, heat a large glass of milk and take it into your bathroom. Then fill your tub with warm water, and throw a handful of fragrant bath salts or some pine needle extract into it. Next, step into the tub and relax in the warmth of the fragrant water. Lie there for a while and sip the warmed milk until you feel yourself getting a bit sleepy. Then gently lather your body, and cleanse it of accumulated dirt and salts of perspiration. After this, rinse yourself, pat your skin dry, and tumble into bed.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture," write care of Central Press Canadian, Toronto, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

CALGARY, Sept. 23 (C.P.)—Someone who stole thirty-two turkeys from the yard of J. H. Paris, Cheadle district farmer, added insult to injury. They stole the police dog he had kept as watch dog. Later, at night, the birds were returned to the farm yard, and today the dog was back, his reputation as a watch dog slightly soiled.

Weddings

COLL—CARTER

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Boleskine Road, when Rev. O. L. Jull united in marriage Grace (Betty), elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Carter, of Carey Road, and Mr. George Coll, youngest son of Mrs. A. Coll, of DeWinton, Calgary, and the late Mr. Coll.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a Marina blue silk flat crepe dress, fashioned with a long full skirt, lace-trimmed bodice and bishop sleeves. With this was worn a large picture hat of blue, and matching accessories, and she carried an arm bouquet of pale pink gladioli. Miss Sophie Carter attended her sister as bridesmaid, wearing a becoming frock of blue silk crepe and carrying a colonial bouquet of pastel-shaded Autumn flowers. Mr. John Parker supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception for intimate friends and relatives was held at the home of the bride's parents, the rooms having been decorated for the occasion in a color scheme of pink and white, and a three-tier wedding cake centred the refreshment table.

The bride and groom were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Coll, and later left on the afternoon boat for Vancouver, from where they will leave on a motor trip through the Western States.

Music Pupils Give Party for Teacher

A delightful afternoon party was planned and given for Miss D. E. Moore, L.A.B., in her studio, 1249 Rockland Avenue, on Saturday, by the members of her Skylarks Music Club, the occasion being her birthday. A beautiful pot of fuchsias was presented to her by little Eric Dowell, on behalf of the members.

The afternoon was spent in musical games of various kinds, in between which several pupils gave piano and vocal solos, those taking part being Peggy Butterfield, vocal solo, "My Task"; Ted Browne, vocal solo, "Killarney," both of which Enid Browne accompanied; piano solos, "Crinoline Days" by Margaret Humphreys; "Minuet," Eric Dowell; piano duet, "March of the Giants," Miss Moore and Margaret Humphreys; "That Little Bird," recitation by Carol Watson.

Tea was served and boxes of chocolates presented to Enid Browne, Peggy Butterfield, Dorothy Wiles, Nellie Sims, Alan Gosse and Ronald Shrive for excellent lessons during the holidays. Great credit for the success of the afternoon was due to Phyllis Harwood, Enid Browne and Peggy Butterfield, who so ably carried out all the arrangements.

Twenty-five members and friends of the Saltspring A.Y.P.A., going by launch from Burgoyne to Maple Bay, attended the dance given by the Local District Council at Duncan.

He was a reformer, and he was giving the audience a few home truths. Every now and then he would thump a clenched fist into his palm as he emphasized some vital point in his speech.

"Yes, my friends," he said, "although you are all above sin, you must beware of the demon. The demon is chained to the wall, waiting to jump out and catch you. If you give him the slightest chance he'll stretch out his hand in front and grab you! Or he'll stretch out to the right and grab you! Or he'll stretch out to the left and grab you! He'll even stretch out behind and grab you!"

This was too much for a man in the second row of seats, who, rising to his feet, shouted: "Well, hang it all, the blessed thing might as well be loose."

ASIATIC ISSUE UNDER ATTACK

Dr J. L. McDougall Criticizes C.C.F.—Jack McDowell Deplores "Apologies"

"The C.C.F. party has some great window dressers, but if it is elected you will find that despite its window dressers it will not be able to keep in control that belligerent element, which will scuttle the C.C.F. ship as soon as it has carried its supporters into governmental control," declared Dr. J. L. McDougall, Liberal candidate in East Vancouver, when addressing a meeting held in the Rex Theatre, Esquimalt, last night in support of Jack McDowell, Victoria Liberal candidate. J. F. Mesher presided.

COMMENDS CANDIDATE

Dr. McDougall commended Mr. McDowell on his stand against Oriental labor, and said the C.C.F. party was committed to the enfranchising of Orientals, who, under the present birth rate, were a real threat to the governmental, commercial and industrial life of British Columbia.

The only difference between the manner in which the Liberals and C.C.F. supporters viewed unemployment was their method of approach. There was a great difference, the speaker said, between nationalization of credit and currency and the regimentation of industry. The Liberal party stood sincerely behind the platform to nationalize credit and currency and thus bring under control the link between the producer and consumer, a control which was so badly needed and essential if unemployment was to be mitigated.

ATTACKS PLUNKETT

Mr. McDowell attacked D. B. Plunkett, particularly in connection with his speech on Saturday night, which he claimed was "nothing but an apology for his omissions of the past five years."

"He spent his entire time apologizing for having taken two Dominion departments to the Mainland, and feebly explained his negligence in allowing Victoria to be robbed of a $125,000 seaplane base in the Inner Harbor. And his only reason, senile as it is, was that planes could only be operated in Victoria five months out of the year," Mr. McDowell asserted.

Touching upon relief, Mr. McDowell showed how men could have been usefully employed in constructing the West Coast Road and opening up a national park on the West Coast, instead of being kept in "slave camps" at a cost during the past three years of approximately $500,000, in so far as the camps at Otter Point and beyond were concerned. The West Coast Road, he contended, could have been built to Port Renfrew for $400,000.

ORIENTAL LABOR

He also attacked the Government for allowing the employment of Oriental labor on ships operating out of Victoria and Vancouver which received a total subsidy of $9,500,000 a year. The overhauling of these ships also should be done at Esquimalt if the companies were to be given such heavy subsidies, he said.

Colonel Cy Peck explained, in his address, that he was supporting the Liberal party in this election as a protest against "the unfair treatment of returned men in connection with pensions." As a member of the pensions tribunal, he had done everything in his power to see that the veterans of the war were fairly treated, but the board finally had been abolished because it gave favorable decisions to those who were entitled to pensions, he declared.

RECONSTRUCTION AND CREDIT UNITS FUSE

ately from the floor of the meeting whether or not he was prepared to stand as a Social Credit candidate.

HIS POSITION

"I am not," he replied, explaining he would remain a Stevens Reconstruction candidate, pledged to the national dividend.

At the outset of the meeting Rev. F. W. McKinnon, pastor of the Douglas Street Baptist Church, introduced A. D. Creer, president of the British Columbia Social Credit League, Vancouver, who then became chairman.

CREDIT CANDIDATE

Mr. Creer introduced the main speaker, W. A. Tutte, of Vancouver, who said he was standing as a Social Credit candidate in Vancouver-Burrard.

"Ninety-seven per cent of the money in the Dominion of Canada consists of simply figures written in a book. This is what is called bank credit," Mr. Tutte explained. "The money, so necessary for us to do business with, is in the hands of a private monopoly in Canada. Ninety-seven per cent of it is created or destroyed according to the needs of the monopoly, and has nothing to do with the needs of industry.

PEN-MONEY

"It requires brains, energy and resources to produce wealth, but it only requires the stroke of a banker's pen to create all the money we want. It is absolutely necessary that we get rid of the monopoly of credit, before there can be any lasting recovery in Canada. Goods are wealth, and we can make goods in abundance. We are denied money because the monopoly of credit insists that the money it creates must be paid back to it, at interest.

"Canada's debt in 1867 at Confederation was $93,000,000. Today the national debt alone has grown to $2,840,000,000. During that period the Dominion has paid in interest $2,500,000,000. That is the result of the monopoly of credit," Mr. Tutte continued.

MORAL CLAIMS

The people, he insisted, had a moral claim to a share of the abundance of real wealth possible under invention and mechanical progress. Students of the new economics recognized that claim. Technology was displacing human labor, and pay cheques, with the paradox of poverty amid plenty. The world with 20,000,000 unemployed, faced not a shortage of work, but a shortage of purchasing power, he submitted.

SIMPLE, BUT INGENIUS

"Major C. H. Douglas discovered the simple, ingenius device for abolishing poverty," Mr. Tutte went on. "There is justification for a national dividend entirely in accord with the moral concept mankind insists upon retaining. Douglas recognized the fact that the only people secure today were those with an independent income. He hit on the simple expedient of providing an income for everybody in the community, so that we one and all should be free from want forever. He called this the 'national dividend.'

"This national dividend would have to be an absolute increase in purchasing power, without inflation; not raised by taxation or to be taken from others. It is part of the birthright of our cultural heritage, and there is only one way we can enjoy that birthright, and that is by getting a sum of money as our share of this inheritance. Even a small national dividend, distributed periodically, would completely sweep away the last vestiges of poverty in the land. It would reinstate 'the unemployed shopper.' It would create labor. It would remove the cloud of misery and poverty from our homes."

ACCUSES LIBERALS OF AIDING JAPAN

when the Prime Minister had been talking half an hour the meeting had become orderly.

"I am surprised that the decent citizens of Vancouver permit such an exhibition—that the police do not throw these hoodlums out. I wonder how they would be treated if this were Russia?" he said.

The clamor from the galleries was replied to by cheers for the Prime Minister from other sections of the audience.

Mr. Bennett turned to the subject matter of his address. The crowd gradually quieted so that those in the lower galleries and on the floor of the rink could hear what was being said.

TRADE MATTERS

He discussed trade and the negotiation of trade agreements. Canada had maintained its position as fifth place among the trading nations of the world. He decried alleged efforts of Opposition candidates to lead the public to believe Canada had lost markets and restricted trade.

"This Government will be handsomely returned on October 14," Mr. Bennett declared. "Of the multiplicity of parties with candidates in the field, none of them but the Conservative party has a fixed policy for stability of the future of Canada."

Again Mr. Bennett took Liberal Leader Mackenzie King to task for his criticism of the Government's action toward Japan.

He told some details of the Japanese trade difficulties and declared that to accede to tariff concessions demanded by that country would have been to place Canadian people working for wages compared to which those in relief camps were well off.

The Prime Minister took his hearers over the legislation adopted by Parliament in the past five years, and mentioned particularly the proposed appointment of a public prosecutor whose duties would include enforcement of regulations arising from the price spreads report.

PUBLIC PROSECUTOR

A "distinguished Canadian jurist familiar with provincial civil and criminal laws, speaking both French and English," would shortly be appointed public prosecutor, Mr. Bennett said.

Provisions had been made for the appointment of an Economic Council "free from taint or suspicion of party bias," Mr. Bennett said, and the Government had a definite policy for the improvement of radio and civil aviation. "We hope," he said, "to bring British Columbia nearer the rest of Canada by air."

The Marketing Act, Mr. Bennett said, had been passed to secure for the producer a larger share of the consumer's dollar. There are some who oppose that act. They say it is interference with liberty.

LIBERTY INCOMPLETE

"None of us have complete liberty," Mr. Bennett went on. "None of us can do exactly as we like."

"You can!" came a voice from the gallery.

"No," replied the Prime Minister. "I wish I could, " would not be here."

But every one of us must make some personal sacrifice of individual liberty so that there can be general liberty for the whole.

Telling of the Federal Government's efforts to maintain credit and keep the provinces from default, Mr. Bennett told of the advances to British Columbia, a total of $33,000,000 "to enable the Government at Victoria to carry on business."

The Government was making advances to British Columbia "although this is a Liberal Government that has been criticizing and decrying us all over the country. We did that because we put country before party."

Relief camps operated in Canada for single unemployed transients had been such a success and benefit that they had won the admiration of the countries abroad.

Touching upon the activities of Communists in Canada Mr. Bennett said that had it not been for agitators who went among the young men in relief camps there would have been no difficulties.

"There are those who say Section 98 should be repealed. When I heard tonight the clamors of those who would have denied free speech in this hall, I wondered why anybody should say Section 98 should be repealed.

"The basis of all our civilization must be the maintenance of what we have come to consider law and order.

VANCOUVER BRIDGE

"Some of you say I stand in the way of a bridge across the First Narrows. I tell you I have nothing whatever against the bridge."

He had discussed the matter with all the parties and the Government asked only that widest provision be made for safe navigation and expansion in view of the fact that it would stand for seventy-five years.

"We have made too many mistakes of that kind in this country," Mr. Bennett said.

"Span your glorious harbor with a bridge, but insist that those who promote it, see to it that those who come after can say that we safeguarded the interests of the future."

NOW SAYS PROPOSALS WERE NOT OFFICIAL

Addis Ababa, total disarmament of Ethiopia, and the placing of that nation's armed forces under Italian officers.

Tonight, Anthony Eden, of Great Britain, and Premier Laval, of France, conferred on the grave situation. The committee of five, after officially publishing its plan for peace, prepared to meet again tomorrow before finally reporting to the League Council that it has been rejected by Italy and accepted by Ethiopia.

The question now is, what procedure will the League follow? The committee draws up its reports tomorrow and the council meets tomorrow or Wednesday to consider the situation.

If the Council acts under Article 15, it can make the rejected plan the plan of the League, and Italy can only resort to war in defiance of the covenant. Article 15 is that which provides that if there should arise between members a dispute likely to lead to a rupture, members agree to submit it to the Council, and if the dispute is not settled, the Council may publish its statement and conclusions.

This leads directly to Article 16, in which sanctions are contemplated, "Should any member of the League resort to war in disregard of its Covenants XX, it shall also be deemed to have committed an act of war against all other members of the League."

Amid the gathering tension, the news from Rome that Mussolini had issued tentative instruction for the possible evacuation of Naples and other port cities in case of emergency, added a grim touch.

ETHIOPIA INDIGNANT

ADDIS ABABA, Sept. 23 (AP).—Indignant Ethiopian officials tonight termed "crazy" and "preposterous" the reported demands of Italy for a grant of rich land in return for peace.

Emperor Haile Selassie engaged in secret and important conferences at the Palace with Federal lords and his foreign advisers. His spokesman reiterated that the Empire will never accept any agreement between Great Britain and France on one hand and Italy on the other, which would partition Ethiopia into spheres of economic and political influence.

Any grant such as that reported proposed by Il Duce's representatives at Geneva, would leave Ethiopia with little more than mountains and deserts, Selhasie's spokesman said. Moreover, he added, it will greatly increase the danger of irritation in the future.

"The only territory the Emperor is willing to cede is Ogaden and Assua Provinces, and then only for cash revenues useable in the national development of Ethiopia," the spokesman asserted.

"Kids Getting Pretty Hungry," Stevedore Tells Inquiry Judge

Veteran Waterfront Worker Contends Dispatching Should Be In Hands of Experienced Man—Witnesses Allege Discrimination

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (CP).—Dispatching of longshoremen on the waterfront should be in the hands of an experienced waterfront worker, Owen "Paddy" Doyle told Mr. Justice H. H. Davis at the longshore inquiry this afternoon.

Looking across to the side of the hall occupied by several officials of the British Columbia Shipping Federation and their counsel, Doyle said, "Outside of Major W. C. D. Cromble, there's not one of those men who know me, especially Mr. Farris (J. W. de B. Farris) and the man sitting beside him" (H. A. Bourne, assistant counsel with Mr. Farris for the federation).

"I spoke up, Mr. Commissioner," Doyle continued, "only because I want to get back to work; the kids are getting pretty hungry."

NO TIME ALLOWED

Doyle, who has worked on the Vancouver waterfront for the past twenty-five years, said he believed if the federation had notified the men's organization they would no longer recognize it because of a broken agreement and had given the men twenty-four hours to think the matter over, the strike would have been averted.

Instances of alleged discrimination by the dispatcher of the Shipping Federation of British Columbia were also cited today before Mr. Justice Davis by James Greer, official of the Vancouver and District Waterfront Workers' Association.

Greer claimed that on April 22, when the Empire Stevedoring Company reported shortage of three jitney drivers and he recommended three men to the dispatcher, the latter replied the foreman on the job would take three men from the gang to do the work. He contended this was weakening the strength of the gang and contrary to the principle of the agreement.

OTHER INCIDENTS

Two other incidents, both in which spareboard men allegedly were refused work by the dispatcher when they were next on the list, were cited by Greer.

Mr. Justice Davis, however, felt the incidents outlined by Greer did not justify the serious condition on the waterfront.

"The whole trouble is the Fink Hall system of dispatching," Greer said.

"But you agreed to the system in writing in October. Grievances are bound to crop up where 927 men are employed," the commissioner replied.

Mr. Greer contended the various difficulties on the waterfront could have been settled by arbitration.

FLEW FAST OVER ROUTE

Planes Exceed Two Hundred Miles an Hour in King's Cup Race

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The fourteenth race for the King's Cup, held recently, was notable in the performance of E. W. Percival, who flew the course on the final day at an average speed of 208.91 m.p.h., and the unsuspected speed of the winning Gipsy-Six-powered Falcon cabin monoplane, which deceived the handicappers to the extent of 20 miles an hour and finished some seventeen miles ahead of its nearest rival.

In four successive laps of the seven that were flown on the final day, Mr. Percival's Mew Gull monoplane, which had been entered by the Duke of Kent, maintained a steady speed of 211 miles per hour. No machine has exceeded 200 m.p.h. in the previous history of the King's Cup, and its pilot deserved better than the sixth place to which his handicap reduced him.

LONG ROUTE

The first day's racing was an eliminating contest, over a course of 957 miles, which took the flyers from London north to Edinburgh and Renfrew and back along the west coast by way of Newtownards (Ulster), Blackpool and Cardiff. Of the twenty-nine competitors who started, twenty-two completed this course. Twenty of them qualified for the final, which consisted in seven circuits of a fifty-mile lap with starting and finishing ponts at Hatfield aerodrome. Incidentally nineteen of the twenty finalists flew machines fitted with a de Havilland Gipsy Major or Gipsy-Six engine, a notable triumph for the firm. Only one of the twenty was a biplane.

H. S. Broad flew into fourth place in the T.K.2. monoplane designed and built by the students of the de Haviland Technical School, whose T.K.1. biplane was fifth last year. On the power of a Gipsy Major 130-h.p. engine, the T.K.2 averaged the high speed of 165.88 m.p.h., nearly 10 m.p.h. better than its handicapped speed. It is a low-wing cabin machine, normally fitted with seats for two, though for the race it was flown as a single-seater with extra fuel tankage.

RECORD MAKER

The Mew Gull which set a new speed record for the event is the machine that won the Grand Prix of the Aero Club de France in the hands of Guy de Chateaubrun last month. It is a single-seat cabin craft with fixed undercarriage, designed for fast touring and postal transport, and derives power from a Gipsy-Six 200-h.p. engine. Although he was disappointed of victory, Mr. Percival has reason to be satisfied with the performance of the six airplanes built by his company that took part in the final; one of them, flown by C. E. Gardner, of the Redhill Flying Club, averaged 170.08 m.p.h. in a Percival Gull monoplane to win the trophy awarded each year by Sir John Siddeley to the light airplane club whose representative stands highest in the final award of places or marks.

Coming From Orient Ports Via Hawaii

Bringing a fair list of passengers, mails and cargo, the Canadian Pacific liner Ss. Empress of Japan, Captain L. D. The Japan will be here probably two hours, continuing to Vancouver on the completion of local business.

GOING EAST FOR PLANE

Hopes to Make Non-Stop Jump From Winnipeg To Coast

E. P. H. (BILLY) WELLS

Just before he took off yesterday afternoon on his return to Vancouver, Pilot E. P. H. (Billy) Wells received word from headquarters that he was to proceed to Winnipeg and take over the new De Haviland Rapide plane which Canadian Airways is bringing to the Coast for the Vancouver-Seattle run, to be inaugurated next Tuesday, October 1. The plane was flown to Winnipeg from the Montreal plant of the airplane company by one of Canadian Airways Eastern pilots.

The new ship is an eight-place job, equipped with twin Gypsy-six motors of 200 horsepower each. The ship has a top speed of 165 miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 140 miles.

Pilot Wells stated on leaving here that he hoped the weather would be favorable when he was ready to leave Winnipeg, as he very much wanted to make the trip from the prairie centre to Vancluver non-stop. It will all depend on the weather man, however.

Although he could not say anything about it, it is believed Pilot Wells will fly the plane in the new service, and that Pilot Maurice McGregor will become the regular pilot of the Victoria-Vancouver link of Canadian Airways' services.

Naval Units May Be Ordered Into Atlantic Ocean

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—If war breaks out in Europe, the navy may have to consider the necessity of bringing back units of the United States fleet now in the Pacific to the East to protect American trade in the Atlantic, Secretary of the Navy Swanson said today.

Swanson declared, however, that no consideration had yet been given this question and it was unlikely that any such consideration would be given until there was an actual outbreak of war.

He said the question of bringing back part of the fleet from the Pacific would depend upon what American trade route might be endangered by the war and to what extent the United States was prepared to abandon its trade in the danger zone in order to maintain its neutrality.

Theodore Roosevelt had the distinction of being the youngest president of the United States. He lacked a month of being forty-three years of age when inaugurated.

REFUSED TO GIVE STEAM

Crew of Wairuna Takes Stand That Cargo Is Unfairly Handled

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (CP). — The crew of the Ss. Wairuna, of the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, has refused to give steam to the vessel here to work cargo or go to sea because of the handling of alleged "unfair" cargo.

The ship brought 1,000 tons of dried fruit and canned goods from Australia for Vancouver. Shipping officials stated there was no objection when the cargo was loaded, though it was known to be for this port. They said the goods are partly perishable and the consignees demand it be landed.

The crew claims the freight is unfair because it is being handled by men they class as strike-breakers.

NEW ZEALAND ARTICLES

The Wairuna crew is signed on under New Zealand articles. Ms. Aorangi and Ss. Niagara, which have arrived from the Antipodes and sailed with cargoes since the strike started June 4, are under Australian articles. Crews of these ships took no action in the strike.

One member of the crew is in hospital here and if he cannot return, his place must be taken by a man nominated by the Seafarers' Industrial Union, acceptable to the crew and, it is said, acceptable also to the strike committee. When this matter is cleared up, the crew will decide whether they will take their ship home or leave her tied up here.

GREGALIA IS DUE MONDAY

Tyr Stows Lumber Cargo —Three of Whaling Fleet Have Returned

The next ship of the Donaldson Line arriving here will be the Gregalia, according to A. E. Shanks, of Rithet Consolidated, agents for the line. The Gregalia is due here on Monday next, bringing in cargo for British Columbia ports. The Gregalia will continue to Vancouver after completing here.

Completing loading lumber cargo here, the freighter Tyr shifted to Port Alberni last evening, where she will finish. The Tyr arrived at Ogden Point Piers from Vancouver at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

Three of the little whaling vessels of the Consolidated Whaling fleet have returned to port, the third ship coming in over the week-end. Earlier last week the White and the Blue arrived; the Brown, which came in on Saturday night, making the third. There is still one more to come, the W. Grant, and she is expected today or tomorrow. The catch of the three ships for the season totals 156, 75 per cent of them being sperms. The White, Captain Harry Anderson, took sixty-seven; the Brown, Captain Knute Halvorsen, took forty-seven, and the Blue, Captain Andy Anderson, took forty-two.

ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

On her maiden voyage to this coast, the new pasenger and fruit carrier, Ms. Nordstjerman, of the Johnson Line fleet, is expected in Northwest ports about October 8, participate in the seasonal movement of fresh fruits to Europe. The ship has space for 84,000 cubic feet of refrigerator cargo and accommodation for 125 passengers.

When the Holland-America Line Ms. Damsterdyk clears from New Westminster tomorrow, she will carry out a total cargo consignment of 3,500 tons of British Columbia cargo, including canned salmon, frozen fish, lumber and metal, and ten pasesngers will be aboard for points in the United Kingdom.

The trans-Pacific round voyage record was smashed recently by three days, when Japan's new twenty-two-knot combined oil tankery and silk carrier, the Tatekawa Maru, of the Kawasaki fleet, steamed into the port of San Pedro. On her maiden voyage, she departed from Port San Luis at 8:30 p.m. on August 1, carried 93,000 barrels of crude oil to the Japanese naval base at Tokuyama, unloaded and returned to San Pedro, August 28, at 7 p.m. The 10,000 nautical miles were covered in 26 days, 22 hours and 30 minutes—a remarkable record, say shipping men.

VANCOUVER SHIPPING

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (CP). — Ms. Margaret Johnson, Captain Oscar Gedda, arrived over the week-end to C. Gardner Johnson Co., Ltd., ten days ahead of schedule. She will remain until next Saturday. The vessel brought twelve passengers.

Anglo-Canadian Shipping Co., Ltd., reported Ss. Anglo-Peruvian due overnight at Chemainus.

The Japanese freighter Hayo Maru, inward to B.S. Shipping Co., Ltd., arrived at Port Alberni today.

The Greek steamship Delphoi is due September 26 to Anglo-Canadian Shipping Co., Ltd.

Col. N. S. Fall, managing director of Union Steamship Co., of New Zealand, will arrive soon from London, en route home. He will sail October 9 aboard Ss. Monowai.

AIR SERVICE SPEEDS MAIL

Vancouver to Be Within Twenty-Five Hours of New York, October 1

VANCOUVER, Sept. 23 (CP).—Possibility of having a letter delivered in New York twenty-five hours after the air mail closes here is a feature of the new all mail schedule that will take effect on October 1.

Final arrangements were completed here over the week-end at a meeting of postal and other Canadian and United States Government officials and officials of the Canadian Airways, Ltd. Planes will leave here daily at 2:45 p.m. to connect with transcontinental planes at Seattle, and leave Seattle at 9 a.m. for Vancouver. Passenger service may be added later.

A new twin-motored plane is being flown here from the East. It is equipped with two-way radio to meet all weather conditions. Receiving and transmitting apparatus is being installed at the Sea Island Airport.

STORMY SESSION DOWN THE COAST

Move to Purge Ranks of Organized Labor Endorsed After Fight At San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 23.—A resolution demanding the exclusion of Communists and those with Communistic affiliations from the ranks of organized labor was adopted by the California State Federation of Labor, after one of the most bitter fights in its history.

Harry Bridges, San Francisco left-winger, was on his feet when shouted down by demands for a vote.

The resolution carried by a vote of approximately five to one.

The resolution instructs the federation to ask its member unions to "purge insidious red termites" from membership.

An uproar followed the introduction of the measure. It was presented by Robert L. Ennis, of Sacramento. Scores of the radical element leaped to their feet, shouting charges of red baiting and of unfair tactics.

It was with difficulty that the chair kept order as ringing denunciations were made by Casper Bauer, of Santa Cruz and other radical leaders.

EVERY MOTHER SHOULD READ THESE LETTERS

BABY AT DEATH'S DOOR RECOVERS

Dear Sir,—I feel it my duty to let you know what your remarkable medicine has done for my daughter. She was unable to digest any food whatever when two months old. She vomitted everything I gave her, and also suffered with Diarrhoea, which brought her down to a very weakened condition. I tried all kinds of baby food, and placed her under the care of a baby specialist, who did everything possible, but, she rapidly became worse. I tried Harris' Wondro as a last resource. She at once began to improve, and is now a beautiful girl fourteen years of age enjoying the best of health. She has taken Harris' Wondro several times since, as it always gives her the strength and tonic properties that a growing girl needs. My husband and I often refer to her as the "Wondro Baby," as we believe she would not have been alive today had it not been for Harris' Wondro. I wish to express my gratitude, and hope this letter will be the means of other mothers giving this splendid herbal remedy to their sickly babies.—Yours very truly,

MRS. J. J. LEIGHTON.

444—13th Street N.W., Calgary, Alberta.
Phone L1196.

SPARK OF LIFE JUST SEEMED TO FLICKER

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in letting you know what a blessing your medicine has been to my family. About seven years ago, when my daughter was an infant, two months old, she developed Bowel Trouble, and her system thereby seemed to become thoroughly poisoned. Although we got the best medical skill, my baby seemed to pine away, hour by hour; sometimes the spark of life just seemed to flicker.

I was near to distraction when a neighbor persuaded me to try Harris' Wondro, although it seemed only a forlorn hope. The effect of this medicine on my child was greatly surprising. She gained strength steadily from the first dose, small as it was, and in three weeks' time had made a complete and rapid recovery. Another daughter, nine eleven years of age, suffered pitifully from Nervous Muscular Twitchings. She was entirely rid of this terrible affliction after taking your famous herbal remedy for several months. Our family doctor hardly knew her after she had taken Harris' Wondro. No words of mine can express my gratitude. We have seven of a family, and my husband and myself have proven beyond doubt the merits of Harris' Wondro as a family medicine. Our children are all pictures of health, and are well acquainted with Harris' Wondro, as it seems to fortify them against many maladies to which they might otherwise be susceptible.—Your truly,

MRS. F. McCALLUM.

3104—35th Avenue S.W., Calgary, Alberta.

CHILDREN'S AILMENTS

No mother need be afraid of giving her children Harris' Wondro for the numerous complaints to which children are subject. Harris' Wondro acts quickly on children's ailments, and can be given to children of all ages, including even very young babies, with absolute safety and positive benefit.—Every mother should have a bottle of Harris' Wondro in the house ready for use when the children complain, as it is a splendid tonic for delicate and sickly children. Rosy cheeks and healthy bodies soon develop after administering Harris' Wondro.

Harris' Wondro can also be obtained in capsule form—reduced price, $3.50 per box straight. One separate bottle for Harris' Laxico, a medicine for constipation, is included free with every bottle or box of Harris' Wondro. Sent by mail postpaid from Calgary to country points.

Little Stories for Bedtime

Fidget and Weechi

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Peter Rabbit had left the low swampy place where grew the moss-covered trees, and on high ground was soon among a lot of young hemlock trees. These had no moss on them. From one of them a little black and grey bird with a yellow cap, yellow sides and a yellow patch at the root of his tail, flitted across in front of Peter. It was Fidget the Myrtle Warbler, one of the two friends he had been looking for down among the moss-covered trees.

"Oh, Fidget!" cried Peter, hurrying after the restless little bird. "Oh, Fidget, I've been looking everywhere for you."

"Well, here I am," retorted Fidget. "If you had looked here before you would have found me before. What can I do for you?" All the time Fidget was hopping and flittering about, never still an instant.

"You can tell me where your nest is," replied Peter promptly.

"I can, but I won't," retorted Fidget. "Now honestly, Peter, do you think you have any right to ask such a question?"

Peter hung his head, then replied quite honestly: "No, I don't, Fidget. But you see, Sprite the Pareua Warbler told me you had a nest not far away, and I've been looking at bunches of moss until I've got a lame neck."

"Bunches of moss!" exclaimed Fidget. "What under the sun do you think I have to do with bunches of moss?"

"Why—why—why—I just thought you probably had your nest in one the same as your cousin Sprite," Fidget laughed right out. "Moss may suit my cousin Sprite, but it doesn't suit me at all," said he. "I build my nest of twigs and grass and weed stalks and hair and rootlets and feathers, and if you really want to know, I like a little hemlock tree to put it in, just like my cousin Weechi. By the way, have you seen him this Spring?"

"Well, here I am," retorted Fidget

"No," replied Peter. "Is he anywhere around here?"

"Right here," replied another voice, and Weechi the Magnolia Warbler dropped down on the ground for just a second right in front of Peter.

The top of his head and the back of his neck were grey. Above each eye was a white stripe and his cheeks were black. His throat was clear yellow with a black band just below. From this black streaks ran down across his yellow breast. At the root of his tail he was yellow. His tail was mostly black on top and white underneath. His wings were black and grey with two white bars. He was a little smaller than Fidget and quite as restless.

Fidget and Weechi at once began to discuss their nests and the proper way of building them. Peter being more interested in seeing those nests than hearing about them, finally stole away to look for them, but though he looked and looked he didn't find either.

BOOK LEARNING IS NOT ENOUGH

W. A. F. Hepburn Tells Canadian Club Children Must Think for Themselves

Requirements of the world are not to be met with bookish knowledge, and memorization of facts does not necessarily fit children to take their places in the present economic scheme, W. A. F. Hepburn, M.C., M.A., B.Ed., of Edinburgh, told members of the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon. The speaker, introduced by Herbert Ahscomb, M.P.P., dealth with "Scotland and Her Problems."

Children of Scotland are being taught to think for themselves so that they will be able to resist mass suggestion and refrain from following false leaders like sheep, the speaker declared. Telling of a reaction against the literary tradition of Scottish schools, he outlined plans to teach students initiative, adaptibility and other useful things not found between the covers of books.

UNDER LONDON CONTROL

After the war, Scottish railways and banks came under London control, and many business branches were closed, Mr. Hepburn related. This meant that Scottish industry suffered with London exercising an enormous magnetic pull upon outlying cities and districts as its industrial importance grew all the time. Scottish factories exported products and machines with which to manufacture the products to many parts of the world, eventually this resulted in a heavy decrease in the country's exports.

"I believe that Scotland made the mistake of putting too many eggs into her industrial basket," stated Mr. Hepburn. "It has been pointed out that agriculture and fishing must be developed in order to provide work for the many miners and steel workers. I hope the day will come when many of these sons of Scotland will be free to join their relatives in the great Dominion of Canada and do their share toward making it even greater than ever," he said.

HEALTHY BODIES

Mr. Hepburn hoped that the rising generation would be prepared by changes in the educational system to take their rightful places in the industrial world. Scottish schools were concentrating upon building up healthy bodies, for without a healthy body one could not have a healthy mind.

He considered that the peoples of the earth who believed in freedom might have to vindicate their belief in the only way open, in referring to the rash statements of one of the European dictators. He closed by hoping that Canada would adhere to the principles of freedom and fair play.

General Sir Charles Delme-Radcliffe tendered a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hepburn on behalf of the Men's Canadian Club.

BURN MORTGAGE ON CLUB HOUSE

Mountaineering Group Holds Ceremony at Forbidden Plateau on Sunday

COURTENAY, Sept. 23. — The mortgage on the Mountaineering Club's cabin on Mount Beecher was burned on Sunday. A party of thirty-five drove to the Forbidden Plateau Lodge and hiked to the cabin. The party included seven from Victoria, who had come up to investigate the possibilities of skiing at a later date. Complete satisfaction was expressed with the nature of the country in this area after visiting other places on the Island. The conditions here were the best seen, and the party signified its intention of returning for the Winter sports if the road is kept open and accommodation provided.

CLUB MEETING

At a formal meeting of the Comox Mountaineering Club, held in the Mount Beecher cabin, with Dick Idiens presiding, C. S. Wood was called on for a short history of the building of the cabin and the opening up of this country.

William Douglas gave some interesting reminiscences of the movement. Mayor Charles Simms was called upon and spoke briefly in well-chosen words. Miss Peggy Watt, the club's secretary, then consigned the mortgage to the fire. Plans for an active Winter were made and enthusiasm reigned.

Children in a third-grade room were asking questions about Holland. Jane asked:

"Miss, do they have electricity in Holland?"

"Of course they have," broke in little Donald. "How could they run their windmills if they didn't?"

DR. CLEM DAVIES TO LECTURE TOMORROW ON "COMING CRISIS"

Dr. Clem Davies will lecture again at the Empire Theatre tomorrow night, taking for his subject "The Coming Crisis." Dr. Davies will discuss the following phases which enter into the theme:

Will the coming struggle eventuate into a struggle of all nations against the Anglo-Saxon Commonwealth? Who is behind Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin? How will the British peoples win out in economics, government and in Armageddon? Where does Social Credit enter into hte coming situation? Will Russia and Germany strike when Italy has lured the British strength into the Mediterranean?

Dr. Davies was greeted with nearly 1,100 auditors at his opening lecture last Wednesday, and seats were at a premium. Extra seats were placed on the platform. Doors will be open at 6:30 p.m. with a preliminary radio concert followed by a Steinway grand pianoforte recital by Miss Elsie Friend, L.A.B. Seats are free.

WILL CO-OPERATE IN TOURIST WORK

Manitoba, Minnesota and North Dakota Will Form Association Similar to Coast Body

With a view to forming a sectional international tourist travel promotion organization, similar to the Evergreen Playground Association, Colonel G. P. C. Poussette, executive-secretary for the Tourist and Convention Bureau of Winnipeg and Manitoba, has written to the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, seeking information about the Pacific Coast association.

Mayor David Leeming, as president of the Evergreen Playground Association, feels gratified that the success of the organization here has resulted in other portions of the country setting up like organizations for similar purposes.

Colonel Poussette, president of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus, stated the new organization would be formed on October 7. It will include cities on both sides of the international border in the states of Minnesota and North Dakota, and in the Province of Manitoba, thus joining Winnipeg, St. Paul, Minneapolis and large North Dakota cities in a co-operative advertising campaign for tourist business originating on the Gulf of Mexico and South Central States and northward.

HUMAN APPEAL IN DOMINION DRAMA

"Alice Adams" Presents Katharine Hepburn in Entirely New Type of Role

Striking in characterization and vibrant with human interest, a new film that will touch the heartstrings of every class of audience, opens today at the Dominion Theatre, "Alice Adams," starring Katharine Hepburn, is its title.

The story relates to a young girl in a small Midwestern town, who is aflame with ambition to climb out of the mire of genteel poverty and social ostracism. She masks her heartaches and tragedies behind a screen of pretence and deceit, only to find that truth and honesty are the only passwords to the land of her heart's desires. The saga of her hopes, her despair, her courage, and her final triumph is a dramatic gem. With her performance of the title role, Miss Hepburn adds another triumph to her brilliant screen record and further establishes herself in the ranks of the uppermost stars of the cinema.

Fred Stone, noted stage star, making his screen debut in this RKO-Radio picture, scores convincingly in the part of the downtrodden, hopeless father who sacrifices his honor on the altar of his devotion to his family. Anne Shoemaker, as the nagging, disillusioned, slovenly mother of Alice Adams, is equally fine in her exacting role.

CAPITOL THEATRE "China Seas" is the title of the stirring drama now at the Capitol Theatre, with Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Wallace Berry in the principal roles. As its title implies, the story deals with the adventures of a group of white people on a storm-wracked ship off the southeastern coast of Asia. Perilled by typhoons and pirate raids, they work out a strange destiny in the "last frontier" of the sea.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE An attractive feature of Douglas Fairbanks' "The Private Life of Don Juan," now at the Playhouse Theatre, is the singing of lovely Binnie Burns, who displayed a charming voice as Katheryn Howard in "The Private Life of Henry VIII." The new song, entitled "The Sun Came Up in the Morning," was written especially for her by Arthur Wimperis and Arthur Benjamin.

COLUMBIA THEATRE "The Captain Hates the Sea" is now at the Columbia Theatre. The picture is a screen adaptation of Wallace Smith's famous novel of the same name, and presents a cast headed by Victor McLaglen, John Gilbert, Wynne Gibson, Alison Skipworth, Walter Connolly, John Wray, Helen Vinson, Fred Keating and many other notable screen players. It was produced by Columbia Studios, who made "It Happened One Night," "Lady for a Day," "20th Century" and "Man's Castle."

TWO CRITICS HIGH IN PRAISE OF OPERA STAR

Leonard Liebling, in The New York American, says of Paul Althouse, Metropolitan Opera tenor, who will sing at the Empire Theatre on October 1:

"Althouse left no doubt as to his abilities in the art of interpreting music-drama. His voice retains roundness and power, and shows substance in the top tones; he sings with traditional Wagnerian style; and invests the words with clarity and highly intelligent declamation. In his acting he showed all his former sincerity and skill."

Julian Seaman, in The New York Mirror, writes: "Althouse made good gloriously—in voice, appearance and dramatic action. He has a certain resilience and gladsome boyishness which captured immediately the interest of his large audience. He made the role natural, alive, even daring—touches which stamped him at once the real artist."

Pittsburgh Pirates Blank Cards, 12-0; Leading Cubs Idle

Defeat Pushes Second-Place St. Louis Squad Three and One-Half Games Behind Chicago—New York Giants Split Twin Bill With Braves

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Cardinals took a double setback in their chase for the National League pennant today, when they absorbed a 12-0 shutout from the Pirates and Jim Weaver. While they remained in the running for the flag, the defeat put them three and one-half games behind the idle Cubs with only six to go.

The third-place Giants by splitting a double-header with the Braves, lost their thin chance of tying Chicago.

Here's how the clubs stood after today's games:

St. Louis	93	55	628	3½	6

NATIONAL LEAGUE

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates, Buccaneers in more than name today, forced the St. Louis Cardinals to walk the plank to the tune of 12-0, and left the 1934 world champions with little more than hope they can pass the league-leading Chicago Cubs and win another pennant.

Chief Buccaneers were big Jim Weaver, hurler, who limited the Cards to four hits, two of these in the ninth, and Floyd Young, second sacker, who drove in seven runs.

The defeat shoved the second-place Cardinals three and one-half games behind the Cubs, who come here Wednesday for a five-game series to end the season. Chicago is idle today and tomorrow. St. Louis could lose tomorrow and take the pennant by sweeping the Cub series.

Three runs were scored by the Pirates in the first inning, almost before the crowd of 7,500, small considering that the American Legion national convention is in session here, had settled down for the game.

Split Twin Bill

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Dodgers retained sixth place in the National League today by splitting a double-header with the Phillies. Johnny Moore's tenth-inning homer gave the Phils a 4-2 victory in the opener and their third straight triumph by the home run route. The Dodgers blasted out an 8-4 decision in the afternoon, scoring all their runs in the seventh inning.

Twenty-Third Victory

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—Carl Hubbell pitched the Giants to a 3-2 victory over the last-place Braves in the first game of a double-header to earn his twenty-third victory of the season and equal his biggest previous winning record in the major leagues. Frank Gabler, making his first major league start, couldn't continue the good work, however, and the Braves won the second game, 9-7.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP).—A four-run rally in the fourth inning and Lefty Gomez' seven-hit pitching gave the Yankees a 5-1 victory over the Senators in the opener of their brief series today. It was the fifth straight for the Yanks and Lefty's twelfth triumph of the season.

A run behind, the Yanks opened fire on Earl Whitehill in the fourth when Jesse Hill, Red Rolfe and Ben Chapman hit successive doubles and Lou Gehrig and Myrl Hoag followed with singles before a man was retired.

WIN GOVERNORS' CUP

MONTREAL, Sept. 23 (AP).—George Hockett hurled four-hit ball and Syracuse Chiefs today won the Governors' Cup and the play-offs of the International League, defeating the pennant-winning Montreal Royals, 2-1, in the seventh game, for four victories to three.

The brilliant southpaw showed perfect control. He had no strikeouts, issued one walk and had the Royals grounding or popping harmlessly all afternoon.

Harry Taylor hammered a home run for the Chiefs, over the scoreboard, in the sixth, to tie the game after the Royals had led from the fourth. In the ninth "Specs" Toporcer doubled off the scoreboard and Tucker's single brought the former home for the winning run.

TERRY TO QUIT PLAYING RANKS

Will Pilot New York Giants From the Bench in 1936 Campaign

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, yesterday announced his retirement as an active player at the end of the current season.

If he can find a capable replacement, Terry intends to become a bench manager next season, devoting all his time to piloting the baseball club.

At the same time the Giant manager spiked rumors that Carl Hubbell, star southpaw, would be traded before next season.

Terry, who will be thirty-seven years old, October 30, first broke into organized baseball with Atlanta in 1914.

BROWN BOMBER IS BETTING FAVORITE ON EVE OF BATTLE

Louis Quoted at Odds of 5 to 9—Many Expect Colored Boy to Win by Knockout—Biggest Crowd in Many Years Will See Battlers in Action

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—A remorseless negro with a tremendous punch; a giant, reckless white man, half killer, half clown, rolled back the years of the fight game tonight to the day when Tex Rickard and hysteria were twin kings and money was like sand. Joe Louis, chocolate soldier from Detroit, and Max Baer, the curly-headed Californian, meet in the ring at the Yankee Stadium for fifteen rounds or less tomorrow night. So great was the rush for tickets that there was no question that gross gate receipts would exceed $1,000,000, and in doing so perhaps break boxing records which New York thought would never be challenged again.

JOE LOUIS

"Mike Jacobs, down to the bottom of the ticket barrel, predicted that every one of the 94,569 pasteboards printed would be sold by 7 p.m. tomorrow night, an hour after 2,000 standing-room tickets go on sale downtown.

EXPECT BUMPER CROWD

If that happens the crowd at the Yankee Stadium will represent the greatest ever to gather for an athletic event in New York, surpassing the 85,262 who saw a baseball double-header between the Yankees and Athletics in the stadium on September 9, 1928; pay total receipts of $1,184,830.10, exceeding the past record of $1,083,530 for a non-title heavyweight match of Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, in the Polo Grounds, in 1927.

Ticket speculators, holding choice ringside seats, were calmly asking $150 to $200 apiece for them as special trains from as far away as San Francisco, from Detroit, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Boston, Cincinnati, and some from Jackson, Mich., poured tens of thousands into the city to jam every hotel. Some of the larger hostelries planned to bed down many of the fight fanatics in their public rooms tonight." It was estimated that $10,000,000 in extra revenue was flowing into the city.

Everywhere groups were arguing, and all the big commissioners agreed that more money was being wagered than on any fight since Dempsey and Tunney met for the second time in Chicago in 1927. Odds favoring Louis at 5 to 8 yesterday, lengthened to 5 to 9 today. The race track contingent, headed by Tim Mara, one of the major bookmakers, held thousands to bet on Louis, their favorite. They believed that when the Baer money is smoked out the odds will drop to 5 to 7 on the negro, probably just before ring time, approximately 8 p.m., C.S.T., tomorrow night.

POLICE ARRANGEMENTS

The most extravagant police arrangements ever made for a ring spectacle were completed with the assignment of 1,925 patrolmen and detectives to duty around and within the stadium tomorrow.

There will be another 500 plain-clothesmen and members of the pickpocket squads within the park.

The experts favor Louis by a knockout in the middle rounds almost 3 to 1, but the man in the street, remembering the emotional and fighting heights the Californian catapult rose to in his conquests of Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera, are back on his side again, despite the tossing around Max gave them when he lost his title to Jimmy Braddock this Summer.

Lean and fit, anything but overconfident, Baer abandoned his planned airplane trip down from Speculator, N.Y., where it was raining, and instead took a train.

He and Louis figure to earn $300,000 each, almost as much as they have earned together up to now. They share too, in the $27,000 return from the radio broadcast, and the $25,000 for the motion picture rights.

WILL RECEIVE WARNINGS

Although there was no meeting of the New York State Athletic Commission today, Bill Brown, one of three members, took occasion to emphasize some of the things that will be told Max Baer and Joe Louis about fouls, as a matter of routine, as they weigh in tomorrow.

"They'll be read the rules from A to Z, and I'll tell them a few things without sugar coatings. If a foul is made, one that looks deliberate, the referee will stop the fight at once and we're going to have a referee with that much nerve. We'll hold up the fighters' purses and have all the money returned to the folks who bought the tickets," Brown said.

"There'll be no hanky-panky tomorrow night, but the battle must be a fair one."

Miss Schoecher, the soprano, was relating some of her experiences at the musical "at home."

"I have had some exciting adventures," she said. "The most memorable of all happened on a voyage from New York. A terrific storm arose, and the captain asked me to sing, to calm the terror-stricken passengers. You should have seen the heavy seas running."

"H'm," grunted the unhappy Brown, who had so far suffered her singing in silence, "and I don't blame them!"

JOE LOUIS WILL JOIN BENEDICTS AFTER BIG BOUT

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—Joe Louis, twenty-one, and Marva Trotter, nineteen, Chicago, will be married "sometime tomorrow evening," the fighter's fiancee said tonight.

Maybe the wedding will be before, maybe after, the $1,000,000 fight. The Chicago stenographer isn't sure.

She says he's a marvelous fighter.

She say, she's a poor cook.

"I guess I could keep a person from starving to death," she explained, "but I think Joe would rather eat in restaurants."

They will wed in a Harlem apartment, staying there until Saturday. They plan to fly to Detroit for a one-day stop and then go on to Chicago, where they will remain indefinitely.

EXPLANATION FOR SUNDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

Wine and Longevity—Chailly, in the Department of Cote d'Or, is in the heart of the famous French Golden Coast wine country. Although wine is consumed here in a larger proportion per capita than anywhere else in France, the locality has the largest percentage of longevity. In a total population of 357, there are ten nonagenarians, twenty octogenarians, and a large number of septuagenarians. The population is healthy and there is no inebriety.

Deaf and Blind Musician—Helen May Martin, of Merriam, Kansas, has been deaf and blind since a few days after birth, yet she has succeeded in becoming an accomplished musician, playing both the piano and the harp. At thirty-nine, she gives concerts frequently, and has a library of 6,000 pieces of music which she wrote in a system readable to the blind. Miss Martin memorizes musical numbers by holding an ordinary tin can to catch the vibrations, and then plays them without missing a note.

MIDWEEK SOCCER SEASON OPENS HERE TOMORROW

Three Fixtures Are Carded; Two Games At Royal Athletic

Saanich United to Battle Spencers and James Bay Wanderers Will Oppose Kresges at Enclosure —Navy to Meet Hudson's Bay

With six well-balanced clubs ready for action, Wednesday Football League elevens will usher in the 1935-36 season here tomorrow afternoon with three matches billed on the opening day programme.

The draw for the first round, announced following yesterday evening's meeting in The Colonist board room, follows:

2:30—Navy vs. Hudson's Bay, Admirals Road; referee, A. Johnson.

2:30—Saanich United vs. Spencers, Royal Athletic Park; referee, Al. McKinnon.

4:00—James Bay Wanderers vs. Kresges, Royal Athletic Park; referee, D. McMillan.

Officials announced yesterday that the teams will play for the Hayward Cup with a ten-game schedule, calling for home-and-home games, planned. The club with the largest number of points at the termination of the schedule will gain possession of the trophy for the next twelve months. Hudson's Bay won the cup last year.

WILL NOT AFFILIATE

An offer to meet the Victoria committee of the British Columbia Football Commission to discuss affiliation with the provincial body was turned down, club managers deciding to operate as an independent league. This has been done for many seasons and has been very successful, and the delegates saw no reason for making the change. Secretary Shrimpton was instructed to write the Victoria committee and inform it of the stand taken.

Saanich United is the only new eleven seeking the Wednesday League honors this season. Entered at yesterday evening's meeting, the suburban club is reported to be carrying some excellent material and should make a good showing in the loop.

Spencers, twice holders of the championship, will trot out practically the same eleven as that which have carried them through to the title for the past two seasons, and look for another successful year.

Hudson's Bay, nosed out of the championship during the 1935-36 campaign, are reported to be placing a strengthened eleven in the running this season. Kresges, formerly the Maccabees, have considerable good talent and are figured as title contenders from the start.

NEW FACES

Navy will have some new faces on their line-up along with the old stalwarts who have carried the sailors through to many a victory on local fields. James Bay Wanderers, who last season functioned under the name of the Outer Wharf Rangers, have also acquired some new material.

With six good clubs ready for the sound of the initial whistle, officials yesterday expressed the opinion that another successful season is in the offing for followers of the Wednesday League clubs.

The resignation of Albert Hewlson from the post of vice-president was received with regret, and G. Silburn was elected to fill the vacancy.

SOUTHERN NET TITLE WON BY DONALD BUDGE

Czechoslovakian Player Defaults in Final Game to Oakland Youth

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 23 (AP).—The men's singles championship ended unsatisfactorily here today when Roderich Menzel, the Czechoslovakian, defaulted to Donald Budge, America's brilliant young Davis Cup player, after the Oakland youth had taken a two-to-one lead in their scheduled five-set match. The by scores of 6-1, 6-4.

The anti-climax came after a series of untoward incidents, including the defaulting of Wilmer Allison, national titleholder, and the extension of the tournament to two extra days.

The announcement that Menzel had defaulted left the 1,500 persons in surprised silence. The umpire, reserving his statement until the contestants had left the court, apparently for their rest intermission, said that Menzel had "defaulted in deference to his mixed doubles partner, "Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, with whom he played a semi-final match later in the day.

MRS. ARNOLD WINS

The only redeeming feature of the day's programme was the woman's singles final, in which Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold, of Los Angeles, swept through Katherine Stammers, of England, with absurd ease, winning her third straight title here, by scores of -1, 6-4.

While it seemed apparent in the men's singles at the time of its unexpected ending, that Budge would win, there had been little difference between the players. Menzel went out to win the first set, handily, 6-1. He dropped the second one only after stubborn resistance.

He obviously was foot-weary at the end of the third set, during which Budge ran him from front to back court and across its entire width with alternating stiff drives and soft chop strokes.

In the second set, service was broken eleven times as they battled back and forth before Budge finally was able to hold his own service on the twentieth game and win.

RETURNS TO COURT

Approximately three hours after Menzel defaulted in the men's singles, he returned to the courts for the mixed doubles semi-final match. Playing with Carolin Babcock, Los Angeles, he won the first set, 6-3, over Nancy Lyle, of England, and Jacques Brugnon, of France, and then dropped the second set, 5-7. It was so dark by this time that the match was called off and the players will start again tomorrow.

Previously, Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, and Budge had advanced to the finals over Miss Stammers and Enrique Maier, of Spain, 7-9, 6-4, 10-8.

Allison defaulted from the singles Sunday because of a bad cold.

Barney Ross—Louis all the way.

Joe McCarthy—Baer for my money.

Big Storm Captures Final Race of Meet At Local Enclosure

Victoria-Owned Thoroughbred Scores Popular Victory as Racing Meetings on British Columbia Tracks End—Good Crowd Attends

Big Storm, six-year-old gelding from the locally-owned Wentworth Stable, who captured the Lulu Island marathon at Brighouse Park on August 24, scored another thrilling marathon victory yesterday afternoon at the Willows track in the final gallop of the last day of Victoria's fourteen-day racing meeting.

Well ridden by Jockey Eddie Taplin, Big Storm was close to the leaders all of the way and after going to the front leaving the back stretch for the last time, won handily. It was made the second choice by the punters and returned $9.35 straight, $3.95 place and $4.05 show. Dare Devil, an eight-to-one shot, was second, and Primrose Day, the favorite, third.

GOOD MEET

The race marked the close of one of the best racing meets witnessed here for many seasons. Good crowds were on hand daily; the betting was brisk throughout, and racing was featured by many close and thrilling finishes.

With the thoroughbreds galloping close to form, prices generally were short, there being but one double-figure win price posted during the seven races. Tommy Doyle, owned by the Esquimalt Stable, provided this mild upset when he galloped to victory in the fourth race and paid $11.90 for a win ticket.

Flagtime, with Jockey Sena in the saddle, copped the first event, with Stanstill second and Gebo third. Lady Goldstream, another favorite, got down in front in the second race at six furlongs and thirty yards. Marion Eaton followed the winner to the judges' stand, and Happy Madge took the show money.

Flying Atom and Platurica, both favorites, took the honors in the third and fifth events, respectively, and Genevieve M. won the sixth gallop at one mile and seventy yards.

BILLY MARCUS DESTROYED

Billy Marcus, with Young in the saddle, fell in the second race and broke his leg. He was later destroyed. Young escaped injury and rode Genevieve to victory in the sixth race.

The daily double, Lady Goldstream to Flying Atom, paid $10.20.

The one-two bet in the fifth race, Platurica and Edison, returned $5.75, and in the sixth race a similar bet paid $32.90 when Genevieve M. and Evidently ran one-two.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX MORRISON

When the U.S.G.A. approved sand clubs I had difficulty using them. At the time Sarazen was working wonders with this type of club.

I watched him play several shots from deep sand traps. I found that he simply plunged the clubhead down into the sand without any attempt to put backspin on the ball. The ball would jump out nicely and often come to rest near the cup.

After experimenting with such a club I found that the only way you can miss a shot with it is by trying to play a cut shot much as you do when using a mashie-niblick. Since the sand wedge, or blaster, as it may be called, is almost foolproof when it comes to bunker shots, its use should be restricted to these shots.

Don't try to do any more than just plunge the clubhead down into the sand just back of the ball. Use plenty of force and you should get out every time.

TEAM WINS BY LARGE MARGIN

Bob Shanks and Ken Henderson Victors in All-Night Island Ride

Ken Henderson and Bob Shanks are today possessors of a silver-covered army helmet following their brilliant ride to Port Alberni and return on Saturday night and Sunday morning in the novel contest staged under the auspices of the Tourist Trade Development Association.

The boys lost only two minutes on the ride to Port Alberni, having arrived two minutes ahead of the prescribed time. They lost fourteen minutes on the return journey, owing to intense fog, but sill were able to finish twelve points ahead of their nearest competitors.

The contest, arranged by the Victoria Motorcycle Club, called for the seven teams of two riders, to leave Victoria with their instruments "blind." They were required to travel from Victoria to Nanaimo at thirty-three miles per hour; Nanaimo to Port Alberni, twenty-seven miles per hour; Port Alberni-Nanaimo, twenty-seven miles per hour, and Nanaimo-Victoria, thirty-three miles per hour. Only three stops were allowed, the boys stopping at Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Nanaimo on the return trip to pick up messages of goodwill from Island mayors.

Shortly after midnight the first teams arrived at Port Alberni, where they were greeted by Mayor Spratt, of Alberni, on behalf of Mayor Warnock, of Port Alberni, who was unable to be present. The riders were entertained during the hour they were allowed there by the Port Alberni City Council at a dinner at the Dunvegan Cafe. Goodwill messages were delivered by the riders that were taken up from Victoria or picked up en route and a basket of fruit from Mayor Spratt's garden was given to be brought down to Mayor David Leeming. The hour up, the riders were checked out on the return trip.

Checking in at Nanaimo, considerable trouble with fog and general visibility was reported, but road conditions were reported good. The riders left Nanaimo at around 3:30 o'clock and arrived at the final check in Victoria between 5 and 6:30 a.m., when they were guests of W. S. Norrington at breakfast.

Gasoline for the riders was provided by the Home Gas, Limited.

Following is the final result of each team's score:

Bob Shanks and Ken Henderson, with 978 points, first class.

W. Espley and M. Taylor, with 962 points, first class.

Frank Baylis and M. Johnson, with 983 points and one stop, second class.

Brian Carmichael and C. Davies, 972 points, one stop, second class.

Jim Worswick and Dan Matheson, 951 points, second class.

R. Stoker and H. Platt, 982 points, disqualified on technicality.

Reg. Rigby and Reg. Shanks, 942 points, disqualified on technicality.

Security Prices Turn Upward at New York Mart

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP).—Stocks moved upward over a wide front in quiet trading today.

While news from abroad still indicated a tense political situation, Wall Street had some hope a compromise might settle the Italo-Ethiopian controversy. A better performance in securities markets in London and other European centres helped sentiment here.

Industrial specialties, steels, some of the amusement shares and a number of utilities were in the van of the upward progress. Rails were mostly a little better than steady.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks rose .4 of a point at 48.8. Industrial and utility classifications were .5 of a point each higher on the average, while rails rose .1 of a point.

In the stock exchange 1,014,240 shares changed hands in the quietest full session since September 4.

A few active shares got ahead 1 to 2 points, such as American Can at 141 3-4, United States Steel at 45 1-4, Chrysler at 70 3-4 and American Telephone at 137. In most cases gains were fractional, as in Bethlehem, Union Pacific, General Motors, International Harvester and Westinghouse.

The bond market experienced its dullest session in more than three months today but prices held up well.

There was a slight tinge of irregularity in the Government section, but foreign bonds displayed cheerfulness over the improved prospects for settling the African dispute.

A 2⅞-point rise in Liggett & Myers 5's was about the only worth while movement among so-called "blue chip" issues.

WHEAT PRICES DIP FRACTIONS

Winnipeg Market Fairly Steady in Face of Sharp Drop at Liverpool

WINNIPEG, Sept. 23 (CP).—Wheat prices declined fractionally in a listless Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, coincident with a more favorable political situation in Europe. Values closed 3-4 to 7-8 cent lower, October at 93 1-4, December 93 5-8 and May 97 3-8 to 97 1-2 cents.

The market, however, was comparatively firm in the face of a 2 1-8d recession at Liverpool and 1 1-8 cents at Chicago. United States millers were among buyers of Canada's wheat today, with the sales totaling an estimated 250,000 bushels. Selling in connection with the hedging of Saturday was too much for the limited support.

Cash and coarse grains were quiet and easier.

FLIGHT. . . .

THE CRANKSHAFT

THE crankshaft of the air-cooled radial engine, the type used almost exclusively in American military and commercial airplanes, is a most carefully designed and manufactured piece of machinery. The lay mind is often confused as to how a single throw crankshaft, carrying nine connecting rods and pistons, can be in balance.

The secret lies with the counterweights on the crankshaft. The system of connecting rods and pistons may be considered as a single weight rotating about the crankshaft centre line. The centre of gravity of this system is at the centre of the crankpin bearing which carries the master connecting rod. A rotating weight is naturally out of balance. A person swinging a weight on the end of a string, in circles, can feel the pull of the weight as it swings about. However, a rotating weight like the piston and connecting rod system of the radial engine can be put in balance by a weight on the opposite side of the rotating axis. This is the function of the counterweights which are attached to the radial engine crankshaft. They oppose, and hence balance, the connecting rods and pistons, which may be considered as a combined weight located at the crankpin bearing.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"GIVE HIM AN INCH—"

The gimme habit is an ancient vice.

Thousands of years ago it was discovered that one had to be careful about certain people—the elephant invariably followed the trunk.

This tendency, inclination, trait, trick or treacherous touch we have been pretty well warned against in fable, not alone, but in proverb as well.

Chief among the latter in Heywood's commentary on some humans' nature, penned, in 1546, thought and uttered long, long, before, but still quite good to the very last letter;

"Give him an inch and he will take an ell."

An ell incidentally, was the old European measure for cloth, no longer used.

The ell varied in length according to the country; thus, the Dutch ell contained twenty-seven inches, the English boasted forty-five, and the Scotch, last but this time not least, thirty-seven.

A small boy at a party had been eating steadily for an alarmingly length of time. When he asked for another helping, the hostess spoke to him earnestly.

"Willie," she said, "I'm quite serious. If you take another helping of trifle you'll burst."

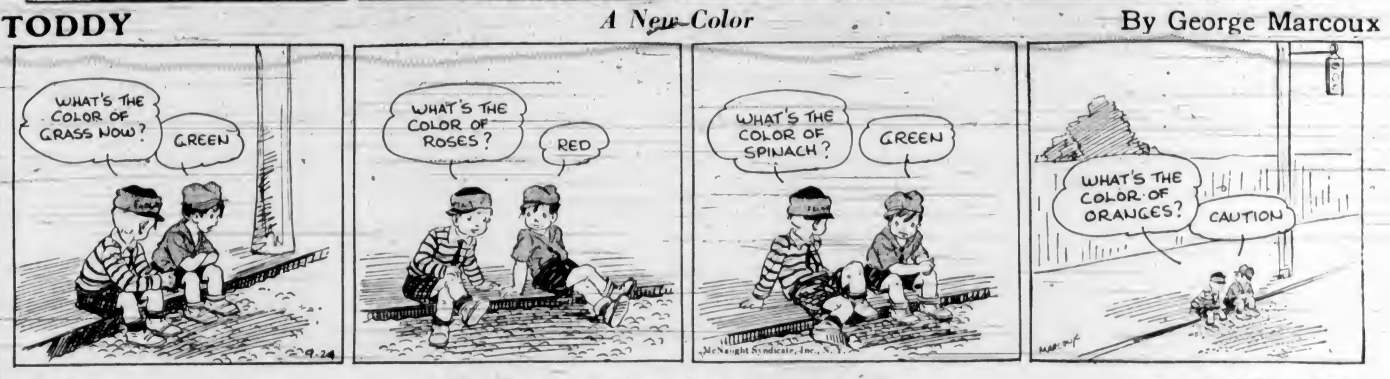

Willie listened, alarm spreading over his features. He hesitated, and gazed at the dish of trifle. Finally he sat erect, a study of heroic resolution.

"A'richt, then," said he, "gie's anither helpin' and staun' clear."

One of the best that God could send,
A faithful wife, a loving friend,
Dearest of Mothers, true and kind,
Oh, you cannot tell how we loved her,
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God only knows how we miss her
As we journey on life's way.

Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of her today,
Are those that loved her best.
The flowers we place upon her grave,
They wither and decay,
But the love for her who lies beneath
Will never fade away.

—Inserted by her husband, mother, father, sister and brothers.

1. Authorizing and empowering The Royal Trust Company, as Trustee under the said Trust Deed, to enter into a supplemental Trust Deed or Agreement with the said Vancouver Island Transportation Company (hereinafter called "the said Company"):

(a) Waiving the defaults made by the said Company in complying with the sinking fund requirements and provisions contained in the said Trust Deed and in the payment of interest accrued up to the 1st day of May, 1935, in respect of the Bonds the payment whereof is secured by the said Trust Deed (hereinafter called the "said Bonds"), and releasing the Company from the payment of the said accrued interest;

2. Providing that upon such supplemental Trust Deed being executed and delivered that the said Trust Deed and the Bonds issued thereunder shall thenceforth be deemed to be amended, varied and redefined in accordance therewith and that the Company be thereupon released from payment of interest accrued under the said Bonds up to the 1st day of May, 1935, and also that The Royal Trust Company be authorized and empowered to execute all such instruments and do all such things as it may deem necessary to carry the said resolution and Supplemental Trust Deed into effect.

WHAT'S DOING ON THE LOCAL RETAIL PRODUCE MARKET

The first shipment of oranges and grapefruit to arrive from California by rail reached the city yesterday. Prices were expected to advance owing to the increased cost of freighting, wholesalers stated, but a decrease in the market offset the transportation rates and prices will remain the same.

A car of Ashcroft potatoes arrived yesterday. Small quantities of Yakima preserving peaches are still arriving, but the crop will definitely be ended by the end of the week.

The egg and butter market remained strong and steady. A shipment of Okanagan Concord grapes arrived over the week-end and a cargo of bananas will arrive today.

Cloverdale, B.C., onions, of a quality equal to that of the Okanagan crop, will be shipped here frequently, it was stated.

A very slight increase in the number of registrations at Victoria College was announced yesterday, following official registration at the opening exercises in the morning. The college this term has an enrollment of 210 students.

Professor P. H. Elliott, principal of the college, addressed the students, giving them some conception of the work ahead of them, and pointing out that the teaching staff was ever willing to assist the students in every way possible.

The freshmen will hold their dance on Friday evening and the council of students will meet during the week to appoint a secretary, and arrange men's and women's athletic activities.

CANADA HAS FINE FUTURE IN GAMES

Harry Maloney Pictures Dominion as More Formidable Contender in 1936 Olympics

Despite many obstacles, Canada made an excellent and enviable record at the 1932 Olympic Games in Los Angeles and would do better in the 1936 events at Berlin, prophesied Harry Maloney, assistant director of physical education and director of all minor sport at Stanford University, in an address on "International Sport" at the Gyro Club luncheon yesterday in the Empress Hotel.

"My idea of a good athlete," he said, "is a young man who can take part in a number of sports rather than in just one." The speaker considered that in the United States too much emphasis was laid on the prowess of a man in one line of sport. A man passing through college and participating in but one sport misses a great deal, Mr. Maloney declared.

RUGBY PRAISED

English Rugby football was equally as much a "he-man's" game as the American brand, Mr. Maloney stated. The game offered the man the use of his own brain instead of using that of the man sitting on the sidelines. The American game is coached by a high-priced official and takes a Philadelphia lawyer to referee it," Mr. Maloney declared.

He urged his listeners to play the game for the sake of the game. If this was not followed out there was a great personal loss to the athlete concerned. "You have got to learn to take it on the chin and come up smiling," said Mr. Maloney.

He referred to the great progress being made in English Rugby in California, and reported that next year Rugby teams from Oxford and Cambridge would play in the United States. The speaker related many stories of his meetings with various world-renowned sportsmen, including Gene Tunney, who, Mr. Maloney stated, "has a warm spot for Victoria."

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE — By BELLE BURNS GROMER

CHAPTER XLIX

On a Sunday morning—the Preston's thirteenth day at the lake—Towner and Bud, who had camped overnight at the corral, came the final five miles to stow rugs and bedding, leave the cabin in shipshape order and then to return Lia and Val to civilization.

When his bag was packed Val went ont to the porch and stood there smoking nervously. His eyes rested on the blue lake and the foot-hills where tall cedars climbed like an army of green-clad giants; but despite the serenity of the scene, his mind was tronbled.

On the surface, this interval at Paradise Lake seemed to have solved many problems, thought Val as they prepared to leave for civilization. After long days in the open Lia and he were physically in top-hole condition; they had achieved a new and pleasant companionship; and from the night of their reconciliation, he had—strangely enough—lost his intense desire for liquor.

But they had come to no definite understanding about their future. Both of them had avoided any frank discussion of ther difficulties. And even if he had fallen under Lia's spell once more, still he believed it had only been to keep the peace that te had permitted her to think he might carry ont her wishes about the invention.

As he turned to watch his wife, who had paused in the doorway to light a cigarette, it struck him that she had grown greatly in beauty during her enforced holiday. Her smoothly tanned flesh had a warm peach-like underglow, dark eyes were clear and bright, small rounded figure seemed to radiate a new vitality. He liked the plain outing clothes she wore. How he had hated those slinky satin robes, the musky perfume and the Venetian bracletts that until this salutary experience had become so much a part of her. Thank God, she was back to normal once more.

"Want to walk up to the trout stream for a last look?" he asked with his amiable blue-eyed smile. "Towner still has some odd jobs to do and we can take the time."

They had both loved the spot by the jade green waters where they had passed lazy, happy hours in the sunlight, so that now her reaction to his suggestion took him by surprise. "Don't be sentimental, Val," she drawled. "Of course I don't want to walk that distance when we have such a long ride ahead. Come and close my bag, will you?"

She turned away and he stood motionless for a space. For days she had been gay, understanding, tactable. But now he sensed a subtle change in her, a fresh withdrawal. Later, when Towner called, "All aboard, folks," Val went slowly down the steps and lifted his wife into the saddle. As the horses moved forward to strike into the green shadow of the timber, he turned back for one last glimpse of the cabin and their enchanted lake. But Lia, he saw, had gone straight on without once looking behind her.

On Monday morning, when Val reported for duty, he found that much radio traffic had been coming through communications; and with the enthusiasm born of a healthy body and a renewed interest in his job, he delved into the stack of paper work he found waiting on his desk.

At noon he decided not to take time off for luncheon but asked Dycer to tell Opal to send him a sandwich and to inform Mrs. Preston he would not be home until six-thirty at the earliest. But just after midday Brad Norris came through the doorway and at the sight of the man's gray face Val knew that something serious was in the air.

"What's wrong he demanded as he led his friend into an inner office where they could be alone. Brad, he thought, had aged five years since their last meeting.

The other man dropped into a chair and lighted a cigarette with fingers that trembled. "I've had a tough jolt, fellah," he said huskily. "It is Sue. It's—it's awful; she has always been high strung—nervous—you know. But a week ago last Tuesday she went all to pieces." He lifted gray eyes, sick with misery, to meet Val's. "Sue isn't herself, see? I came back from California to find her in a bad state. I don't know why. That's the devil of it! I can't get her to talk, to tell me what is wrong. I thought she acted queerly when I returned home that night. Sort of rambled when she spoke. Then, a while later, she got hysterical. And finally when I couldn't quiet her and telephoned a doctor—she—well, I had a hard time handling her——"

"Brad, this is terrible! Terrible! Val had risen to pace the room.

"From that night we had two nurses to watch her," the young aviator went on, "and later I had to give in and take her to a private sanitarium in Seattle for observation. Her father is coming today from the east. And this afternoon the doctors will—give us the verdict." He put his head into his hands. After a time he spoke again in the same low, monotonous tone. "They say she isn't very strong and has had a shock of some sort. She is very emotional, you know. But the part that hits hardest is that she has turned against me—can't bear the sight of me——"

Val put a tight hand on his friend's shoulder. "Is there anything under the sun I can do to help?" he demanded. "Just name it. Come and stay with us until Sue is better. You can camp in the study, fellah. You shouldn't be alone. Let Lia and me help some way——"

The other man shook his head. "Good of you to offer but I couldn't. Is—Lia all right?"

"She, well thanks. We've been off on my leave, you know."

Brad nodded. He started to say something, then stopped. A moment later, he stood up abruptly. "Sorry to have dumped my troubles on you, Val," he muttered, "but you're the only one I can talk to. No one else knows about this. I've told everyone that Sue is away visiting."

"You can depend on me not to mention it, Brad. We've always been sort of like—brothers—haven't we? Lord, fellah, I'd give the world to be able to help you.

"Two late to do anything now. And the rotten part of it is, I have only myself to blame," the man said bitterly. "The navy was my job. I loved it and I should have stuck to it. I thought I was doing the right thing when I tossed away my career. But I should have looked out for Sue. There are other ways of taking care of your wife than just by giving her what money can buy." He paused to stare ont the window. "And even there I had failed. I've lost everything I made on the market. I can't even keep up my payments on the house. That has hurt Sue. She is awfully proud, you know. Of course, I have my job left." His eyes were like those of a man on the rack. "I've got to hang onto that job," he said slowly. "No matter what happens, I don't dare lose it! Sue must have every comfort I can give her, now. I must hang on to this job——"

"Buck up, kid! Sue is going to come through. A nervous breakdown isn't always serious."

"If she pulls out of this I won't ask anything else. I—guess you know how I feel about my wife. She is—all that counts with me." He turned away with an abrupt gesture of farewell and strode from the room.

Back at his desk Val tried to lose himself in his task; but now thoughts of Brad's tragedy kept thrusting in to distract him. At five o'clock he could stand it no longer. The work that remained could easily go over until tomorrow. He gave Dycer some final instructions, caught up his cap and went out.

Once in the open, he stood uncertainly for a moment, then crossed to his quarters to enter through an empty kitchen. Opal, he thought, must be busy in the front of the house, and he was relieved that she was not there to inform his wife of his presence. Lia would be quick to guess that something was wrong and he didn't want her to know about Sue. She had never liked Brad's wife. And anyway, he wished to be alone to think.

As he went through the hallway toward the small study, he noticed that the passage was blue with cigarette smoke, but since he heard no voices from the living room, concluded that Stephen Garenne probaly had been there and had gone again after one of his brief visits with his daughter.

Deep in his own thoughts he closed the study door noiselessly behind him, tossed his cap into a chair, and commenced a restless pacing of the small room. It didn't seem possible that Sue and Brad—so young and happy such a short while ago—had come to disaster! His eyes darkened angrily. Cordray was mixed up in this somehow! And the devil of it was that even if Brad guessed the truth, he was helpless to do anything about it. As he said, Sue must have every care. And in these precarious times, it was a life and death matter that he hang onto his job.

B.C. SALT FISH PLANTS DOUBLE

Sudden Rush Boosts Salmon Dry Salteries From Fifteen To Thirty-One Units

Nine salmon dry saltery licences were issued by the Province yesterday, being a partial list in respect to plants on Vancouver Island, Gulf Islands and at Mainland points. Registration is now closed. The recipients were as follows:

RUSH FOR LICENCES

All licences that will be granted by the Province for salmon dry saltery operations in 1935-36 have now been issued, it was said by George J. Alexander, deputy fisheries commissioner. A total of thirty-one licences have been granted, compared with fifteen licences given last year.

The reason for the rush this year, it was explained, was that salmon dry salting is now under a marketing board, which has power to fix quotas for the salmon taken at any one plant.

Last year, without quotas, 4,500 tons of fish were salted under this head. What the salt salmon quota will be for 1935-36 has not yet been announced.

That Body of Yours

(By James W. Barton, M.D.)

CORONARY THROMBOSIS—BLOCKING OF BLOOD VESSEL SUPPLYING HEART MUSCLE.

You are reading very often these days of individuals dying of coronary artery, or blood vessel, that carries the blood to the heart muscle so as to enable it to squeeze blood out through the big tube to all parts of the body has become blocked by a clot of blood called a thrombus. Naturally if blood cannot get through this vessel, which is the size of a goose quill, then the heart will have no strength with which to pump and the patient will die.

However, all these patients do not die, because when the blood finds that it cannot enter this blood vessel because the clot or thrombus blocks it, then it "makes" its way around this vessel through smaller tubes or blood vessels and gives the heart muscle enough strength to keep pumping the blood.

Dr. Warren B. Cooksey, Detroit, in a paper read before the Central Society for Clinical Research, Chicago, says that if the shock of the attack is not too great and the patient lives for a few weeks afterwards, many of them will recover so completely and the blood circulation supplying the heart muscle will so thoroughly re-establish itself in time, that many useful years will remain to the individual.

Dr Cooksey records fifty-three cases from his private practice of which twenty-one are dead and thirty-two are alive. Of the thirty-two living patients twenty-four have been restored to their previous occupation, with one patient living thirteen years after the acute attack and ten patients living six years after.

The treatment consists of having the patent remain absolutely at rest in bed for at least six weeks after the attack. After this another six weeks elapse before any activity is permitted, and careful supervision of the patient's activities is continued for a whole year.

Dr. Cooksey makes a sensible explanation to the patient of what has happened to his heart, showing the length of time needed to re-establish the circulation and for healing, and thus the great necessity for the patient to rest and so give the heart the least amount of work possible at this critical time.

This is certainly a record that should bring hope to patients and physicians also, because it means that this condition is not so hopeless as was formerly thought.

FILM ACTOR IS BITTEN BY LION

Charles Bickford Attacked During Filming of Scene—Is Rescued By Trainers

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23 (AP).—Charles Bickford, motion picture actor, was attacked today by a large African lion during the filming of a scene and received a deep bite in the back of the neck.

Studio employees said the lion jumped a few seconds before he was supposed to, catching Bickford unawares. The lion had been trained to jump over Bickford's head, but instead the 400-pound animal struck the actor squarely and sank his teeth in Bickford's neck.

The actor was quickly rescued by trainers on the set.
